Health Plan For Nation To Go to 'Hill' Next Week

Truman May Take Issue to the People; Program 'Choked,' Says Special Report

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman will lay his national health program before Congress next week and may take it to the people by radio, AFL President William Green said yesterday.

Green was one of a committee which called at the White House to submit to the President a report on the battle for compulsory health insurance. Others on the committee were Dr. Channing Frothingham, past president of the Massachusetts State Medical Society, chairman; James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the CIO, and Harvey Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists.

Choked, They Charge

Their report charged that organized medicine had "choked the development" of a comprehensive health program. It criticized what it called "organized medicine's monopoly controls" and said national and State medical societies "are depriving American families of better and more comprehensive medical insurance plans at reasonable cost." The report added that:

"The medical societies have choked the development of medical insurance offering comprehensive health service, in favor of plans offering only very limited services."

Green said the committee told Mr. Truman they would carry on an "uncompromising fight against a health measure introduced in Congress Thursday by Senators Taft of Ohio, H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey and Donnell of Missouri, all Republicans. The GOP bill would provide for spending 1.25 billion dollars in the next five years for Federal aid to State health programs.

Called Subterfuge

Carey added to Green's denunciation of the Taft-Smith-Donnell measure, calling it a "subterfuge" and declaring that "we will oppose it with all the power at our command."

The American Medical Association, said Carey, was "the villain" opposing the Administration's health plans. He declared the AMA maintains a "3½-million-dollar lobby in Washington," partly financed by a $25 assessment on its members.

Green said President Truman listened to the committee and "impressed upon us his sincerity in this thing."

Although the President's program has not yet been presented to Congress, it is known to center around compulsory health insurance financed by payroll taxes, assuring free medical and dental care to every citizen.

In support of the GOP measure, Taft said in an interview that the Federal Government must concern itself with education, health, housing and security but without inculcating a "something for nothing" philosophy. He added that:

"Organized charity to the whole population can destroy the freedom and character of the people and increase the power of the central government until Washington bureaus govern the daily lives

Jobless Man Dies in Plunge Of 100 Feet

Hundreds Passing As Body Falls From K Street Building

An elderly traveling salesman, unemployed because of failing health, yesterday plunged more than 100 feet to his death from the eleventh floor men's room of the Tower Building, 1401 K st. nw.

Hundreds of home-bound office workers passed by shortly after 5 p. m. as the body of Edward Warren, 64, of 1434 Harvard st. nw., plummeted onto the skylight on the first floor setback which faces a parking lot, at the west side of the building.

"I heard a thump—sounded like a batch of books falling," said one person in the building at the time, William F. McDonnell, attorney.

"I was in a third floor men's room, about 5:05 p. m." said McDonnell. "I looked out, saw the body sprawled face down, on the first floor roof."

Name in Briefcase

Police found the lower half of the eleventh-floor men's room window open. Nearby they found a topcoat, hat and briefcase. In the briefcase were tennis shoes, a razor, socks, talcum powder, and a certificate of merit bearing Warren's name awarded by the Public Buildings Administration in 1946. Further identification was provided by a driver's license found in his suit pocket.

An elevator operator, Mrs. Eva M. Dickie, 1315 11th st. nw., recalled that she took a man resembling Warren to the eleventh floor at about 2 p. m. He was carrying a briefcase, coat and hat.

Taken Up Several Times

"I've taken him up to that floor several times before but not recently," she said. "This afternoon he had his head down low and asked how I felt and if I ever go fishing."

A distraught woman who answered the telephone listed to Warren at 1434 Harvard st. nw., said she was not related to Warren, and then distractedly mentioned names of relatives of the dead man.

Robert Gillespie, a coppersmith who has a basement apartment facing Warren's at the Harvard st. address, said Warren had recently borrowed money.

Gillespie said Warren had called him several times, twice to borrow $1, once to borrow streetcar fare to the postoffice.

According to Gillespie, Warren

Symbol of Nation's Faith Proposed As Name for Sesqui Celebration

President Truman, highly pleased with a preview of plans for an elaborate Sesquicentennial program here, yesterday suggested it be named the "Freedom Fair" and serve as a symbol of "America's faith in the democratic principles."

The Chief Executive, who is ex-officio chairman of the event, studied architects' conceptions of the buildings of the exhibition area and listened to an exposition of the planned events by Carter Barron, executive vice chairman of the National Capital Sesquicentennial Commission.

He then promptly announced his full support for the program, which recently sustained a setback from the House Appropriations Committee, and urged "all Americans" to participate.

Wanted "Progress Report"

Barron said the meeting of the commission and the President was arranged at the request of the Chief Executive, who desired a "progress report."

Barron quoted the President as saying that the plans submitted were only as far along as they should have been six months or a year ago. The delay was attributed to the normal legislative processes necessary before funds may be appropriated, the President noted, according to Barron, who is Eastern division manager of Loew's Theaters.

The commission, which was created in March 1948 to plan the celebration of the 150th birthday anniversary of the Nation's Capital, announced it will ask for a three million dollar appropriation for its program.

This was the amount originally requested before the Bureau of the Budget reduced it to $1,500,000, Barron explained, and would be necessary to execute the program envisioned by the commission.

Fund Omitted

The House Appropriations Committee, however, omitted a fund of $1,500,000, but the Senate has not yet considered the matter. The House approved legislation Thursday authorizing the commission to go ahead with its planning.

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) declared after the session with the President that the Senate will begin hearings on the Sesquicentennial budget and authorization before May 1.

Other commission members who met with the President were Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) of the House of Representatives; Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.); Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.); Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.); Representative Mary T. Norton (D., N. J.); Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.); District Commissioner John Russell Young; Joseph C. McGarraghy, past president, District Board of Trade; Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank; Robert Woods Bliss, former United States Ambassador to Argentina, and Mrs. Philip L. Graham, wife of the publisher of The Washington Post.

Edward V. Boykin is full-time director of the commission.

Barron told the President the present plans call for use of 75 acres of land on the old polo field in West Potomac Park as the site for the Sesquicentennial Exposition buildings.

Plans to Raze Barracks

The vacant land between the Tidal Basin and the Potomac River will be augmented by the razing of several Wave barracks now at the western end of the area, Barron said. Earlier plans called for erection of the exposition structures on the Monument Grounds, but this was vetoed by the Fine Arts Commission.

The three principal buildings will be designed in the shape of the letters "U. S. A." and will be rimmed with lights visible to the passengers of the many planes arriving and departing from National Airport, Barron pointed out.

The entrance to the exposition grounds will center on a full-scale replica of the Freedom Statue atop the Capitol. Buildings will be designated for industry, State and Federal Government and other exhibits, to "show the world how much progress has been made through the adherence to the democratic tradition," the theater executive explained.

Iran Reported Voiding Treaty With Russia

Red Pressure May Be Protested to U. N.; Soviet Envoy Leaves

Iran's strained relations with Russia gave added concern yesterday with reports from Tehran that Iran no longer regards her 1921 treaty with Russia in effect, and may protest to the U. N. over Soviet pressure.

Earlier yesterday, the Soviet Ambassador to Iran, Ivan Sadchikov, left Tehran without explanation, to return to Moscow, a Tehran dispatch said.

Following the Ambassador's auto was a diplomatic car with five other passengers, and a bus filled with baggage. There was no indication if the Ambassador's departure was permanent, but it was reported without confirmation that his wife and daughter were still in the Iranian capital.

These developments followed reports of scattered clashes along the Iran-Soviet border, the closing of four Russian consulates in the provinces of Azerbaijan, and sharp exchanges by press and radio between the two countries.

There was no indication yesterday that the most recent developments go beyond the war of nerves that has marked relations between Russia and Iran.

Last night, Iranian Embassy officials here said they had no information to deny or confirm a United Press report from Tehran stating that Iran considers the 1921 treaty with Russia "null and void."

It appeared possible, however, that Iranian concern over recent actions might bring a request for consideration by the United Nations Security Council.

A spokesman at the Iranian Embassy said it is more likely

Sen. Bridges Attacks U. S. China Policy

Congressional Probe Asked as Result of Acheson Opposition To Proposed Loan

Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) yesterday demanded a congressional investigation of the State Department to find out exactly this country's policy toward China.

In a bluntly worded statement, he accused Secretary of State Acheson of what "might be called sabotage of the valiant attempt of the Chinese Nationalists to keep at least a part of China free."

This referred to Acheson's opposition to a proposal by Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) for the United States to give China a $1,500,000,000 loan for military and economic purposes.

In a letter made public Thursday Acheson said such a move would involve this country in an undertaking of so great a magnitude that it "would almost surely be catastrophic."

Late Admission, Says Morse

In this letter to Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Acheson said China had been given more than two billion dollars in United States aid since VJ-Day, but that this had not stemmed the Communist forces.

"There is no evidence that the furnishing of additional military material would alter the pattern of current developments in China," he wrote.

Senator Morse (R., Oreg.) remarked: "If what the Secretary says is true, it is a sad and late admission of a fumbling and bumbling China policy."

Bridges, a long-time critic of Administration policy toward China, termed Acheson's letter a "thoughtless, tactless, unfriendly and damaging act."

"The Secretary of State could hardly harm the free Chinese more if he were to dispatch American divisions to fight with the Chinese Communists," the Senator declared, adding:

"I think the Congress and the people ought to know why Mr. Acheson would write so and who in the State Department is relied upon for advice regarding the vital China problem."

'Full Dress' Probe Asked

Bridges said Acheson's views are "absolute proof there ought to be a full-dress investigation by Congress of the State Department's position toward China . . ."

The State Department said Acheson had no comment on Bridges' charges.

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.) sided with Acheson, saying "I'm not disposed to send money over there."

"Any relief we send will be to relieve the Communists," he told a reporter.

But Senator Knowland (R., Calif.) said that as long as this country has a "do nothing policy" there is danger of all Asia, including India, falling under Communist domination.

Knowland said the Senate will not permit the State Department to "sweep this situation under the carpet and forget about it." He asserted the department has an obligation to decide on a China aid program and submit it to Congress.

No Action Yet on Bill

Acheson's letter is "not the final answer" to China's plight, the Californian said.

Knowland, Fulbright and Bridges were among a group of 50 Senators who signed a letter urging hearings on the McCarran bill when it was introduced earlier this year. The measure now is before the Foreign Relations Committee, but that group has taken no action on it.

Under McCarran's proposal, this Government would give China $1,500,000,000 to be used to stabilize China's currency.

Last year Congress gave the Nationalist government a 400-million-dollar grant, of which 125 million dollars was for military purposes. Of this total, 54 million dollars now remain, which Congress has directed President Truman to use for relief and recovery in non-Communist areas.

Not Booming Russell Young, Vaughan Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the White House military aide, talked frankly yesterday about his part in the campaign for a fourth term for District Commissioner J. Russell Young. He said he didn't know "what the score is" at this time.

He said he had not tried to "advise" President Truman about the post, but had simply relayed to him arguments made on behalf of Commissioner Young by a delegation of prominent citizens.

Commissioner Young's current term expires May 17.

General Vaughan was told he was being represented around Washington as having said Commissioner Young was "in" — that his reappointment by President Truman for another three-year term was assured.

"I have not made any statement as to the favorite candidate at the moment," General Vaughan said. "I don't know who has the inside track."

He said he was approached two or three months ago by six outstanding citizens of Washington who felt that Commissioner Young was deserving of reappointment. After saying he would rather not give out their names for publication, he continued:

"They asked me to pass on to the President their desire that Russ Young be reappointed. I conveyed the message, that's all.

Dimitrov May Advise Stalin, Diplomats Say

Bulgarian Premier Not Being Ousted, Sources Here Believe

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Diplomatic sources here last night speculated that Bulgarian Premier Georgi Dimitrov's trip to Moscow may mean he will stay there in an advisory role to his old friend, Marshal Stalin.

It is unlikely, it was said, that Dimitrov, one of the leading exponents of Russian communism, was ousted as Premier but rather is retiring because of ill health and will be replaced by an equally stanch Russian-trained successor.

There is no reason to believe, they said, that there is any likelihood Bulgaria, like Yugoslavia, would defy the Soviet by insisting on its own brand of communism.

Earlier yesterday, a State Department spokesman agreed with the view that Dimitrov's return to Russia meant he was being retired from office.

Conflicting speculation came from British diplomats in London, who said they had no basis for believing Dimitrov, Communist hero of the Reichstag fire trials in pre-World War II Germany, was retiring.

In London, there was strong speculation that Dimitrov was being "called on the carpet" to account for the development of nationalistic trends in Bulgaria.

In many respects, the range of reaction to the move was as wide as that which followed last month's

VMI Owes U. S. About $100,000, VA Official Says

By The Associated Press

The Veterans Administration contends Virginia Military Institute owes the Government approximately $100,000 which has been refunded to veteran students, an official of the agency said today.

The official, who asked that his name not be used, said the $100,000 is the total of individual sums of about $300 each, handed back to veterans who have attended VMI since the GI Bill of Rights went into effect in 1944.

Of the $500 paid by the Administration for each veteran student at VMI, about $200 is for laboratory fees and other items considered essential to education. The remaining $300 is NOT a permissible item under the GI Bill of Rights, the agency contends.

PUC Hearing Set on Phone 'Lawful Use' Stipulation

Slated April 28; Restaurant Owners Protest Threat to Withdraw Service

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday scheduled a public hearing for April 28 on the right of the telephone company to insist that telephones be used for lawful purposes.

The hearing was scheduled after Harry and Bertha B. Katz, 3169 Walbridge pl. nw., restaurant owners, formally protested to the PUC that the threat by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. to remove their telephone was "arbitrary and capricious."

The Katz telephone is one of 324 that United States Attorney George Morris Fay is seeking to have removed on the grounds that they are being used to aid and abet violation of the District gambling statutes.

Deletion Asked

Katz asked that the following paragraph be deleted from the C. & P.'s new tariff proposals, scheduled to become effective Monday:

"The service is furnished subject to the condition that it will not be used for an unlawful purpose. Service will not be furnished if any law enforcement agency, acting within its jurisdiction, advises that such service is being used or will be used in violation of law, or if the telephone company receives other evidence that such service is being or will be so used."

This regulation will become effective Monday as scheduled, according to PUC chairman James Flanagan, but may be rescinded later.

By scheduling the hearing, the PUC becomes the fourth official authority to enter the controversy on the legality of telephone removal as a method of curtailing gambling.

Held Beyond Jurisdiction

Previously, the Maryland Public Service Commission and the Prince Georges County Circuit Court had temporarily enjoined both the C. & P. and Fay from removing telephones, and District Court Judge David A. Pine had enjoined them from removing a Maryland telephone solely on the grounds that the phone was being used to violate District laws.

On April 4, the PUC denied a request that Fay be summoned before it to produce evidence that a telephone was being used to violate District laws. The request was refused, the PUC said, because it called for a hearing on a "judicial matter beyond PUC jurisdiction."

Yesterday in District Court, the telephone company filed its objection to the request of Callie V. Dempsey, 1237 20th st. nw., for a court order enjoining the C. & P. and Fay from removing her telephone.

Meanwhile, spokesmen for the telephone company still declined to comment on whether or not the telephone of Nathan Miller, 4923 LaSalle rd., Avondale, Md., would be removed.

Judge Pine granted Miller a temporary limited injunction against the C. & P. and Fay Thursday, but said he had heard evidence that might justify removal of Miller's telephone on grounds that it was being used to violate Maryland gambling laws.

Carpenter Uses Hammer to Open Bevin's Lock Box

Southampton, England, April 15 (A.P.)—The usually suave British Foreign Office had to resort to brute force today to get at some of its own secrets.

Messengers boarded the liner Mauretania with a locked dispatch box full of urgent papers for perusal by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, who was returning from America.

They expected Bevin to open the box with a master key of a type issued to all British Cabinet members.

"No minister," Bevin told them, "takes his cabinet key abroad."

The diplomats tried prying open the lid with coins, they used a nail file on it. They banged the box on the floor. The lock resisted.

Finally somebody brought a carpenter with a hammer and chisel. He broke the box open.

Bevin then read the papers. He didn't say what was in them.

$1000 Offered For Better Chick Than Bottled One

Houston, Texas, April 15 (U.P.)—A six-week-old chicken named Alice pecked at the sides of her glass home today, while the owner proudly offered a $1000 reward if a healthier fowl of that age could be produced—in or out of a bottle.

The Humane Society claimed Alice was far from healthy, and threatened to bring suit against grain dealer Clyde Roco, who popped the speckled chick into a five-gallon jug last February 28.

Roco admitted he planned bottling Alice for a "promotion stunt," but claimed she had thrived on it.

Amazing Bee Is Own Compass When There's Nectar About

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The bee is that insect which can return from an outing and say to the hive colony: "Chums, there's a batch of first-rate cyclamen chow to be had exactly 520 yards away, direction south southwest."

And he does it all by a brand of jitterbugging fancier than anything you've ever seen on a Washington dance floor.

Even to Dr. Karl von Frisch, professor of zoology at the University of Graz, Austria, who has studied the subject for 40 years, "the language of bees" is "almost fantastic."

He kept an audience of 400 at the National Museum last night enthralled and almost incredulous at his findings.

It is simple enough for the scout bee to give his hivemates the dope on what food is to be had nearby: he brings them a sample.

How does he tell them how far it is?

Well, if it's very nearby, say about 10 yards, he does a simple "round dance." This is very elementary, about like the two-step you first learn at dancing school and it means: "just around the hive, girls, a blind man couldn't miss this one."

What if it is, say, a mile away? This calls for the extremely more complicated "wedding dance," Dr. Von Frisch explained. A half circle to the left, then straight back, then a half circle

Ideal Weather Promised D. C. For Parade of Easter Finery

Washingtonians should have ideal conditions for parading in their Easter finery Sunday, the weatherman predicted yesterday.

But if you go to sunrise services, you'll probably need a warm coat over that spring dress. From an early morning figure of between 38 and 40 the thermometer should rise under "mostly sunny" skies to the low 60s in the afternoon, the Weather Bureau said.

With good weather in prospect, many Washingtonians were on their way out of the city yesterday for Easter weekends and many outsiders on their way in to see the Capital City.

Regarding incomers, the Greater National Capital Committee looked for a flood of visitors to pour into Washington but as of yesterday, a spokesman said hotels were "not overflowing by a long shot." The hotel picture was expected to change rapidly Sunday as the vanguard of an expected 4000 visitors to the annual meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, opening Monday, descends on Washington.

Meanwhile the committee's housing bureau was doing its usual brisk weekend business in helping visitors find rooms in private homes. The ranks of Easter visitors will be swelled by thousands of high school students making the annual pilgrimage to Washington.

Shopping-wise, the District's citizenry yesterday were making last-minute purchases of hats, shoes, gloves, hosiery, ties and children's dresses.

Though there were no pedestrian jams, F st. had a good current of traffic the day long. Keynote

Gen. Smith 'Certain' Russians Know Atomic Fission Secrets

Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith said last night he is certain that Soviet scientists, "as good as any" in the world, have solved completely the secrets of atomic fission but probably are not yet producing atom bombs in quantity.

The former ambassador to Russia told the Mutual Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" audience that the Russians still believe war with the West is inevitable. He indicated a belief that unless the Communists change their tune this means the odds are on eventual war.

Smith, who in February was called a "professional spy" by Pravda, Soviet Communist Party newspaper, said "I am quite sure, Soviet science being what it is—and that's as good as any science in the world—that the problems of atomic fission have been solved very completely in the laboratories and notebooks of Soviet scientists."

Smith resigned as Ambassador to Russia on March 25 after spending nearly three years in Moscow.

Now commander of the First Army, Smith said there is a possibility that war can be avoided if the U. S. pursues a vigorous foreign policy.

But if war did come, he said, it would not be a lightning-fast conflict from which the west or east would emerge a clearcut victor.

"If these two political ideologies engage in a final struggle, it would be a civil war of humanity and I can't conclude that it would be anything but a prolonged, pro-

Fighting Reported All Over Greece

Welcomes Truce

Pope Urges True Peace In Palestine

Vatican City, April 15 (AP).—Pope Pius XII called today for internationalization of the Jerusalem area and establishment of a "true peace" in Palestine.

Roman Catholic bishops throughout the world were asked in a papal letter this Good Friday to work for peace and Catholic rights in the Holy Land. The Pope said the armistice was welcome, but real peace was still to be achieved.

The United Nations partition plan of 1947 proposed international rule for Jerusalem, but war upset the arrangements. Trans-Jordan holds the old city. Israel controls the new city and claims a right to all Jerusalem.

The Pope made his appeal in the second encyclical he has written on Palestine in six months. From its opening Latin words, the encyclical will be known as "Redemptoris Nostri (from our redeemer)." He said he was still receiving protests against damage to churches in Palestine, including Catholic institutions.

As the Pope's letter was issued, an ancient rite was carried out in St. Peter's basilica to mark the anniversary of Christ's death. In it was used a cross purported to contain a fragment from Christ's cross.

This was the "mass of pre-sanctification." Chanting priests and a Vatican choir sang the passion—the account of Christ's suffering and death.

Athens, Greece, April 15 (AP).—Fighting has broken out again all over Greece, the government reported today.

A communique told of widespread clashes in every part of the country. It claimed 107 Communist-led guerillas were killed and 114 captured. It admitted government losses of 18 men slain and 56 wounded.

One of the fiercest and most savage battles in the Grammos war is reported in the Grammos region of northwestern Greece. Press reports say it is being fought at close range, with grenades and knives causing heavy casualties on both sides.

The government claims the "elimination" of the last guerilla stronghold in the southeastern Peloponnesus is in its final stage and says the remnant of a formerly strong rebel band in Thessaly has been wiped out.

The communique said bitter fighting continued in eastern Macedonia.

Dimitrov May Advise Stalin

shift's within the Russian's inner circles.

State Department press Officer Michael J. McDermott said the Bulgarian action "appears to give further background to the recent dismissal of Traicho Kostov and the reported purges of other Communists in Bulgaria. Apparently these moves were related to the question of the official succession to Dimitrov."

Kostov, vice premier of Bulgaria, was ousted from power as the nation's second-ranking Communist for what a Bulgarian communique of April 5 termed "gross political and antiparty errors" and an "insincere and unfriendly policy regarding the Soviet Union."

Similar charges have been leveled at Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito by Moscow. The Associated Press quoted Yugoslav sources as saying the Bulgarian Communist Party has been under Moscow pressure for weeks on grounds it is "too nationalistic."

Regards Russia as Home

Dimitrov, who is 66 and a naturalized Soviet citizen, has always regarded Russia as his "home," diplomats here said yesterday. His hard life under continuous pressure is complicated by tuberculosis of the skin and it has frequently been reported that to make himself appear younger he dyes his hair and uses rouge.

In line with one persistent theory that no single individual, but a triumverate or larger group of individuals will assume leadership of Russia upon Stalin's death or retirement, one official here suggested that a similar action may occur in Bulgaria.

Principal candidates for such a role, which might include one person officially designated as "front man," said one official, could be Foreign Minister Vassily Kolarov; Anton Yugev, minister of interior; Valko Chervenkov, brother-in-law of Dimitrov, and Georgi Chenkov, head of the state control commission.

Boy, 8, Strangled; Vagrant Is Sought

New York, April 15 (U.P.).—Eight-year-old Jackie Goldsmith was found strangled today in an abandoned amusement park and police were searching for a "bum" who was seen fishing with the boy late yesterday on the bank of the Bronx River.

The body was discovered beside an old swimming pool in the Starlight Park" by two 10-year-old boys who were playing hide-and-seek. A leather belt had been twisted around Jackie's neck and buckled in back and a handkerchief was stuffed in his mouth.

Jewish People All But Vanish In East Europe

Prague, Czechoslovakia, April 15 (U.P.).—Nazi gas chambers and the postwar exodus to Israel have stripped eastern Europe of most of the estimated five million Jews who lived there before World War II, a United Press survey showed today.

In Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, only 40,000 of a prewar Jewish population of 572,000 remain.

Of a pre-Hitler population of 3,113,000 in Poland, only an estimated 70,000 to 80,000 are left. Romania had 900,000 Jews in 1939. About 360,000 remain. Of 800,000 before the war, Hungary has only about 150,000 left.

Gala Welcome Proposed For Dutra May 18

Proposals for a ball, a trade exhibit at the Armory and extensive airplane maneuvers were made yesterday at a meeting of the citizens' committee arranging the District's welcome for Brazilian President Eurico Gaspar Dutra on May 18.

Carter Barron, vice chairman of the arrangements committee, suggested that plane formations spell out "Welcome Dutra" and balloons haul streamers with the same sentiments.

Other committee members recommended that representatives of all nations and municipal and county officials of Greater Washington be invited to review the presidential motorcade from the reception stands on Post Square.

Edgar Morris, chairman of the citizens' committee, said the proposals will be taken under consideration.

Accused Slayer of Polk

MOTHER BY HIS SIDE—Gregory Staktopoulos, one of three men accused of slaying CBS correspondent George Polk, sits in the courtroom at Salonika, Greece, April 12, with his mother, Anna Staktopoulos, 68. She is charged with aiding and abetting the slaying. Staktopoulos testified that Polk, who had been trying to interview a Greek guerilla leader, was shot to death in a row boat in Salonika Bay at midnight, May 8, last year, but said he did not see the shot fired

News Tipster Heard in Polk Slaying Trial

Salonika, April 15 (NYHT).—Witnesses, jurors and others taking part in the trial of alleged accomplices in the killing of George Polk indicated today that American correspondents now will have difficulty in finding Greeks willing to give information against their country's regime.

Constantinos Hadjiargyris, former tipster for Polk, CBS correspondent, and for Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune, perspired heavily during a five-hour cross-questioning last night as he assured the court he had no part in establishing connections between Polk and the Communists.

The CBS correspondent was slain in Salonika Bay last May 8 while apparently on his way to meet General Markos, Greek guerilla leader, in an effort to obtain both sides of the story in Greece.

Hadjiargyris added that although he considered Bigart "honest, able and courageous" he stopped working for him after two months because "he was one-sided in that, being a westerner from a well-run country, he came into a country like Greece" and looked at the question of civil liberties "without considering the general background."

He said that he found himself "getting into trouble" as a result of his connection with Bigart.

The prosecution brought out that Hadjiargyris was once charged with being a Communist, but he said this later was overruled. He said his only concern was to talk to people to learn facts and find a way to improve Greece.

He admitted that Polk had asked him how to meet the Communists but said he appealed to the American never to discuss the subject again for fear that he, Hadjiargyris, would obtain guilty knowledge of the Communists underground which he would be bound to disclose to the police.

The prosecution advanced its case today by testimony that Gregory Staktopoulos, who is accused of leading Polk into the Communist death trap, was press czar for Salonika in the days when the Communists wielded strong power after the Nazi retreat and forbade other reporters to work for the "bourgeois press."

[The United Press said pro-government Greeks demonstrated in Salonika today, forcing cancellation of the afternoon session of the trial for fear serious trouble might develop.

[Communist guerilla forces severed overland telephone lines between Salonika and Athens this morning and American correspondents were forced to send their stories to Athens by plane when government cable company employes joined a civil servants strike.]

U. S. Demands Prague Free Relief Worker

Prague, Czechoslovakia, April 15 (AP).—The United States Embassy demanded today that Czechoslovak authorities quickly release Miss Valasta Vraz, an American relief worker who now has spent a week in jail.

Foreign Office attaches said "there is no comment."

Miss Vraz, of Berwyn, Ill., is head of the Prague office of America Relief for Czechoslovakia, which has distributed about four million dollars worth of food, medicine and clothing in Czechoslovakia since 1945.

Police arrested her at her office last Saturday.

In addition to demanding her early release, the embassy also asked to be advised without delay "of the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, including specific charges, if any, against Miss Vraz." Inquiry also was made as to whether she could obtain a lawyer of her own choice.

It was understood at the embassy that Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.) has sent a letter to President Klement Gottwald asking for her release and that further action is contemplated in both the U. S. State Department and Congress.

Two American soldiers who wandered across the border have been jailed as spies.

Reds List 'Potential Aggressors'

Bucharest, Romania, April 15 (AP).—The Cominform bulletin declared today that President Truman, Pope Pius XII, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Winston Churchill and Generalissimo Franco of Spain are potential aggressors.

The newspaper, published by the Communist International Information Bureau, said those men and others it listed "will not be able to unleash war in the face of the mounting movement for peace and freedom."

Others listed as potential aggressors included United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson, French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi.

The paper declared Russia, China, the "popular democracies" of eastern Europe, colonial peoples and Communists in every country will "smash the aggressors" if war is unleashed.

Three-quarters of this issue was devoted to articles supporting the forthcoming Paris "peace congress" and denouncing the North Atlantic Treaty.

Visas Held Up To Block Tour, Wallace Says

New York, April 15 (AP).—Henry Wallace today charged Secretary of State Acheson with holding up visas for three European parliament members due to tour the United States with the Progressive Party leaders.

But the State Department said two of the visas already had been granted, while the third was under consideration.

Wallace in a telegram to Acheson had accused him of attempting to "avoid and evade action" on the documents until after April 27, when the trio is expected here.

But the State Department said permission to enter the country was granted yesterday afternoon to H. Lester Hutchinson, Labor member of the British House of Commons; and Michele Giua, left Socialist member of the Italian Senate.

The visa sought for Pierre Cot, independent member of the French Chamber of Deputies and former Radical Socialist, is still under consideration, Press Officer Michael J. McDermott said.

The three men are scheduled to speak with Wallace at Progressive Party meetings and universities.

Japs Warned To Stop Living Beyond Means

Tokyo, April 15 (U.P.).—In a bitter attack against the Japanese people for "continuously living beyond their means," Joseph M. Dodge, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's financial adviser, today warned that it is time Japan "began to face the facts of life and organized to meet its own problems."

Dodge's stern lecture was interpreted in authoritative quarters as a prelude to possible end of United States aid to Japan in six months unless the Japanese exercise some "self-denial" and get away from their "Alice in Wonderland" pattern of economic thinking.

Dodge, former Detroit banker who has been advising MacArthur since last February 1, assailed the present and past governments in Japan for failing to balance their budgets.

"There seems to be astonishingly little comprehension among the Japanese people of the real situation in their country," Dodge said. "Nothing should have been expected as a result of the war except a long term of hardship and denial."

China Peace Talks at Stage Of Point-by-Point Discussion

Nanking, (Saturday), April 16 (U.P.).—Peiping peace talks have reached the stage of a point-by-point threshing out of details of technical advisers of the Nationalists and Communists, informed sources reported today.

The sources said that a common ground for discussion of all major phases of the proposed agreement had been reached.

The Communist radio warned, meantime, that "all roads lead south to the Yangtze"—an implied threat that the Red armies were ready to move if government negotiators balk at Communist terms. The broadcast said three powerful armies are poised to strike into Nationalist territory.

Bevin Lauds Day-to-Day Cooperation in Europe

London, April 15 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today praised western Europe for day-to-day economic cooperation, but warned that the West will have to use "all our wisdom and all our tenacity" to solve long-range problems.

Bevin, in a statement on the anniversary of the founding of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, again praised the United States for "generous assistance" under the Marshall Plan.

Congress Censured For Secret 'Leaks'

Representative Teague (D., Tex.) yesterday called Congress the "worst offender" in disclosing secret military information.

In a statement, he criticized specifically Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee.

"The Secretary of Defense is now preventing unauthorized disclosures within the military establishment," Teague said.

"During debate this week in the House, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee stated that Russia will be knocked out in a matter of days after the Air Force drops its atomic bombs in the next war.

"If this is the strategy we plan to use, it is not to our advantage to advertise our plans."

Teague was a World War II soldier who was wounded six times. He said wartime disclosure of the so-called "Morgenthau Plan" stiffened German soldiers who were in the mood to surrender.

That was a proposal, attributed to then Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, that Germany be reduced to an agricultural nation.

"The Allied Powers at that time were victorious in every military operation," Teague said, "but the announcement of demanding unconditional surrender and the reduction of Germany to an agricultural nation gave Hitler propaganda material to stiffen resistance for many months.

"We could have waited until the Germans asked for terms before disclosing our demands and probably would have saved thousands of American lives on the battlefields.

"It is necessary to discuss military requirements during debate on our national defense appropriations, but the halls of Congress are not the place to disclose military strategy."

Supersonic Ills

Metals Held Speed Flight Weak Points

Los Angeles, April 15 (AP).—Present-day metals are not standing the strain of supersonic airspeeds, the Western Metals Congress was told today, but:

T. E. Piper, engineer for Northrop Aircraft of Hawthorne, Calif., said lightweight material now used "will not withstand the rain and wind blast at these high speeds. To date, no surface coating has been developed.

"Another problem is that of temperatures created by air friction on the skin surface at extreme high speeds," he said.

AEC Member Scouts Bomb Rivalry Threat

Boston, April 15 (AP).—America's leadership in atom bomb manufacture is "not as temporary as some of us think."

That was the assurance given last night by Sumner T. Pike of the Atomic Energy Commission. He spoke at the annual spring dinner of the Bowdoin Club of Boston.

"Furthermore," Pike said, "when our monopoly does end, we'll have a good lead in the number of bombs on hand."

Pike called it "bad judgment" to publish reports that America is manufacturing a bomb a week at one million dollars each.

"It is bad judgment," he said, "to publish such speculation on what must be a pure guess. Such stories are designed to tease out of people certain information so better guesses can be made."

Pike said it is conceivable that radioactive gas or liquid might get out of hand in the huge projected reactor experimental station in Idaho and produce a "minor catastrophe or accident."

But there would be little danger to persons not actually at the scene because of the remoteness of the nuclear reactor plant and the safeguards planned for its operation, he added.

In a general discussion of plans for the Idaho plant, he explained that the operators would be working with the most powerful reactor yet built, dealing with high temperatures and other factors not hitherto encountered. They would be "in unknown territory" of nuclear fission experiments.

His discussion followed the line of a formal statement issued by the commission last month. That statement noted that possible danger might result from a serious accident to the reactor."

Commission Statement

The commission said:

"It is not possible for a reactor to create a bomb-like explosion.

"The rare type of accident which might cause hazard would be in nature of major damage resulting from sabotage or the very remote possibility of simultaneous failure of the many safeguards and control mechanisms. However, there has been no such failure since the first reactor was built in 1942 and the safety record of AEC installations has excelled all other industries."

The commission disclosed at that time that special studies were made of the possibilities of earthquakes and that the structures would be built to withstand them. That study was made before the recent major earthquake in the Northwest.

Two New Drugs To Combat Fevers Available Here

Medical science's latest proven drugs against a host of fevers, Chloromycetin and Aureomycin, are readily available in the Washington area.

Like penicillin, however, they can be bought only on a doctor's prescription at local drugstores. Chloromycetin was released to the major cities on March 15, and Aureomycetin was supplied drug firms about four months ago, their makers said.

Among diseases in which either or both have been found effective are typhoid fever, Rocky Mountain spotted fever, typhus fever, virus pneumonia, undulant fever and bacillary urinary infections.

Dispensaries For Civilian Employes Set

Civilian employe dispensaries will be established at the Navy Building and Navy Arlington Annex on a par with that at the Pentagon, officials said yesterday.

The expansion of facilities will come under a uniform health service program just approved for the National Military Establishment by Defense Secretary Louis Johnson. It affects more than 37,000 Civil Service employes, plus all food-handlers working in cafeterias and other concessions at defense buildings.

Heretofore, the Navy has maintained small civilian dispensaries, maintained by nurses. Employes were sent to the Public Health Service for other services.

The new program provides for doctors to be on duty at the dispensaries and includes pre-employment and other physical examinations, treatment of accidents and illnesses on the job, referrals, when necessary, to private physicians and dentists, X-ray examinations and other preventive medicine measures.

He said Stalin "is rugged. He looks well. Georgians are notoriously long-lived."

Arguments on Labor Oath Are Deferred

The Supreme Court yesterday deferred until next October the hearing of arguments on constitutionality of the non-Communist affidavit requirement of the Taft-Hartley Act. The postponement was requested by attorneys for both sides.

Validity of the requirement was questioned by the CIO American Communications Association. The association was refused a place on the ballot at a union certification election held in New York by employes of Press Wireless, Inc., on the ground it had not complied with the non-Communist affivadit section of the act.

Jet Fighter Wing to Leave Andrews Base

Washington will lose its only active Air Force combat unit shortly, with the transfer of the Fourth Fighter Wing from Andrews Air Force Base to Langley Base, Va.

The wing's 75 Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star jet fighters and 450 pilots and other flying unit personnel will move to the Virginia base, an announcement said, while some 1000 other officers and men engaged in housekeeping and maintenance duties will remain at Andrews. The latter will be assigned to the 1050th Air Base Wing.

Officials said the change was made necessary because of overcrowding at Bolling Base. Chief function of Bolling is to provide planes for pilots at the Pentagon to keep their hand in at flying. Some of them now will go to Andrews.

The Air Force also said that the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Wing's headquarters, housekeeping and maintenance units, now at Langley, will be inactivated. Personnel of the units will be assigned to the Fourth Fighter Wing to replace those left at Andrews. Headquarters of the 363rd Tactical Reconnaissance Group and two squadrons equipped with RF-80s and RB-26 Invaders will remain at Langley.

Clay Frees Woman Who Slew GI Mate

Frankfurt, Germany, April 15 (AP).— Mrs. Wilma Ybarbo was freed by Gen. Lucius D. Clay today, because of "many extenuating circumstances," from a five-year prison sentence for shooting her soldier husband during a drinking party.

Mrs. Ybarbo, elated at the news, said she expected to leave by air Saturday for the United States and a reunion with her 6-year-old son, Jimmy, in New Bedford, Mass.

"General Clay has never done anything finer in his entire life. I am still numb. I don't expect to sleep tonight," she said.

Mrs. Ybarbo, 23, fatally wounded her husband, Sergt. John Ybarbo of Goliad, Tex., during a bedroom quarrel September 21. She pleaded self defense. She was convicted under both German and military government law by a United States military government district court December 28.

"I do not believe Mrs. Ybarbo to be a vicious person and I am sure that the remorse of conscience will prove punishment enough in the days ahead," Clay said.

West Berlin Rejects Soviet Trade Offer

Berlin, April 15 (U.P.).—Soviet efforts to resume trade between eastern and western Berlin are an admission that Russian zone economy has been hard hit by the Western power counterblockade, Allied officials said today.

Friedrich Ebert, Lord Mayor of the Soviet sector's Communist administration, offered yesterday to relax the Soviet blockade by supplying western Berlin industrial plants with raw materials from the Rusian zone in return for finished products.

The offer was rejected by Ernst Reuter, Lord Mayor of western Berlin. He demanded that the blockade be lifted completely and that free elections be held in the Soviet sector before East-West trade relations resume.

Ebert's offer to relax the blockade was viewed here not as a Rusian peace move but as an effort to spur Soviet zone production, seriously slowed down by the Western allied refusal to ship raw materials into eastern Germany.

$1,500,000 Bill to Aid Child Cripples Signed

President Truman yesterday signed into a law an authorization by Congress to appropriate $1,500,000 for emergency needs of crippled children for the rest of the year ending June 30.

The money is to be made available to the States on a matching basis under the Social Security law.

2 Homeless, Disabled Veterans Wanted to Share Farm Home

Maud Milks has a heart and hope as big as her sorrows. So she hasn't despaired yet, not even after three years of public appeals.

For three years, she's written letters, talked on the radio to explain why she, now 53, and her husband, Arthur, 60, are looking for two homeless, disabled vets to share their crop and dairy farm at Cattaraugus, N. Y.

"Our reason for wanting a couple of boys who are really unable to support themselves is sort of a memorial to our own two boys who died in Jap POW camps in the Philippines," they relate.

"We do not care what race, religion, or color except Japanese," they wrote to the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped in Washington.

"We have plenty of fresh milk, eggs and meat and fresh air and quiet here, and I'd do my best to make them feel as one of the family . . . We do NOT want to employ them."

Paul A. Strachan of the handicapped federation referred the letter to the Veterans' Administration. VA is now drafting a letter to say—sorry, the VA only administers the law, would like to but can't help in such a case.

When informed by a reporter of the latest frustration of her generosity, Mrs. Milks sighed over the long distance phone and told how three soldiers in three years had stayed briefly at the farm, two on leave. Then there were all the letters from crackpots.

But somewhere, she still hopes, there must be two disabled young men who'd like to have a home, wouldn't have to work—boys to fill the void left by Stanley, almost 20 when he vanished after the Death March of Bataan, and Robert, almost 18 when he went down with a Jap prison ship torpedoed by Americans.

Appeals Court Here Sustains Germans' Plea

Any person deprived of liberty by American officials overseas has the right to sue for a writ of habeas corpus, the United States Court of Appeals ruled yesterday.

The right not only may be used by United States nationals but is also available to others, including enemy aliens, the court declared.

Because of these principles, the Appeals Court directed the District Court here to entertain a habeas corpus action brought by 21 Germans now imprioned in Landsberg Prison in their native land.

They had been found guilty by an American military court of waging war in China alongside the Japs after the German surrender and named the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Army, the Army Chief of Staff and the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the United States as respondents.

Terming the habeas corpus writ "the indispensable implementation of constitutional guarantees in respect to personal liberty," the Appeals Court said it was available to American citizens and aliens alike wherever in the world they be wrongfully imprisoned by United States officials.

"The question is not whether a court, either Federal or State, can exercise its judicial power within the jurisdiction of another and independent government," the court declared. "The question is whether it can exercise that power upon those Government officials within its territorial jurisdiction who have directive power over the immediate jailer outside the United States but acting solely upon authority of this Government. We think that it can, if that be the only means of applying the Constitution to a given governmental action."

The decision was written by Judge E. Barrett Prettyman and concurred in by Judges Henry W. Edgerton and James M. Proctor. They held there is no need at this stage of the proceedings to transport the 21 prisoners to this country for the court hearings.

Iran Reported Voiding Treaty

that Iran has declared the "force" article of the Soviet-Iran Treaty no longer effective, rather than the entire treaty.

This section, article 6, under frequent dispute since 1941, provides that Russia can "take troops" into Persian territory only if "third countries," by "armed intervention," try to use Iran as a "base for military action" against Russia.

In that event, Russia could send troops only after notice to Iran, and only if Iran itself is not "strong enough to prevent this danger."

An "annex" to the treaty, however, clearly states, the Iranians point out that the purpose of such intervention was to be only in event that White Russians in Persia attempted to overthrow the Russian revolutionaries who replaced the Tsarist regime.

Russia has charged that Iran is permitting the development in her oil-rich territory of American bases for aggression against Russia. This has been vigorously denied by American and Iranian officials.

In 1946, Iran gave the UN its first test of strength when UN pressure forced Russia to withdraw her troops from northern Iran.

Franco-Soviet Pact Seen

Fliers Drone Toward Goal Of 1000 Hours

Fullerton, Calif., April 15 (AP).—The new endurance champions, Dick Riedel and Bill Baris of Fullerton, were almost three-quarters through their goal of 1000 hours as their little plane droned between Fullerton and Santa Ana tonight.

They cracked the 10-year record of Wes Carroll and Clyde Schlieper at 6:44 p. m. (9:44 p. m. EST) yesterday when they were still up 727 hours. Carroll and Schlieper flew 726 hours in 1939.

Barris and Riedel were confident they could stay up for at least 10 days more, which would put them beyond 1000 hours.

Says It's Up to Plane

"It's up to the plane; we can stand it," said Riedel.

"And the motor sounds mighty sweet, right now," added Barris.

The resistance of the fliers is very good. They ascribe this to their nutritionist, Dr. Michael J. Walsh of Beverly Hills.

"We've been on a strict diet since we took off in the 'Sunkist Lady' 30 days ago," said Barris by radiophone. "Because of our inability to work off excess energy that sugar would supply we eliminated it from our diet. Even chewing gum is out because the small amount of sugar it has might make us nervous and fidgety.

Proteins and Vitamins

"Our diet is basically proteins. We have eggs in various forms, roasted and broiled meats and chicken. We drink no water. We get our liquid from milk, sweet and buttermilk, and unsweetened fruit juices, of which we have a great quantity. We take vitamin tablets regularly.

"We sleep well and regularly. We tore out the copilot's seat, and put in a 6-foot 3-inch rubber mattress where we take turns sleeping.

"We get a sponge bath every other day. We shave every other day. We change our clothes three times a week."

Bruce Reveals He'll Return as Argentine Envoy

James Bruce, U. S. Ambassador to Argentina, announced after a talk with President Truman yesterday that he will soon return to his post in Buenos Aires.

When Bruce returned to this country several weeks ago, there were persistent reports that he would either resign from the diplomatic service, or be transferred to another foreign embassy.

He told reporters yesterday that they should place no stock in those "rumors."

He said he had delayed his return to Argentina only because he wanted to discuss economic problems with foreign aid officials so that he will be able to answer any questions about the European recovery program when he returns to his post.

Lewis 'Voice' Flays Labor Bill Strategy

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The United Mine Workers Journal, which some weeks ago just about threw in the sponge on repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, yesterday blamed the Administration for the way things are going on labor legislation.

The Journal, voice of John L. Lewis, in its latest edition out yesterday, declared:

"The original strategy of labor forces, to seek outright repeal of the National Asociation of Manufacturers-Taft-Hartley Act and then consideration of a revised Federal labor statute, was sidetracked in the very beginning by the Truman Administration itself.

"Instead of following labor's advice, which was in line with the campaign pledges of the Truman Administration and repeated declaration for repeal during the campaign, the Administration presented a "one package bill" to repeal NAM-T-H and simultaneously enact a bill retaining some of its worst features.

Wholly Ineffectual

"This compromise policy has proved wholly ineffectual in producing real results."

In an accompanying editorial, the Journal lashed out at the "paid leadership of labor" for alleged failure to follow "the mandates of the rank and file," which is to make repeal of the NAM-Taft-Hartley law their first consideration."

The Journal reprinted part of its January 1 editorial in which it warned labor leaders of the pitfalls ahead if the union officials permitted themselves to become involved in President Truman's foreign program, the Atlantic Pact and ECA appropriations.

"Labor leadership must stay put—keep all efforts focused and directed on repeal—defy all inducements and persuasiveness, political or otherwise, to divert attention to other pastures no matter how green the grass," the Jornal declared, repeating its standing of January.

Have Gone Along

Leaders of the AFL, CIO, and major independent union organizations have gone along with the President's one-package labor bill—combined repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act with revival of an "improved" Wagner Act—in an effort to pick up voting strength among conservative and Southern Democrats. First floor test is scheduled for the House April 26.

Within labor, this strategy has been attacked by the extreme left-wing block of unions within the CIO and by John L. Lewis. The CIO protesters are considered pro-Communist in their attitude; and Lewis, strongly anti-Communist. Neither is among President Truman's admirers.

Meanwhile, the UMW announced yesterday its 200-man policy committee will meet here April 25 to prepare for the forthcoming summer negotiations with the coal mine operators. It's been an open secret that the miners will seek increased wages, a higher contribution by the employers into the welfare fund and a shorter work week.

Resistance Indicated

In view of the recent decline in the sale of coal and the softening of prices, the coal mine operators have indicated they'll resist new demands by the UMW. If so, another coal strike may follow.

The National Labor Relations Board yesterday agreed to hear arguments April 28 on the legality of the union shop contract between the UMW and the soft coal industry.

The steel companies, which own the so-called "captive" mines producing coal for the steel mills, challenged the union shop contract last July. A brief strike followed, and was called off through an arrangement worked out with District Court Judge T. Alan Goldsborough. The arrangement calls for a final determination of the issue by the courts.

UOPWA Protest

Union Asks U. S. to Halt Labor Spying

New York, April 15 (AP).—The CIO United Office and Professional Workers of America has protested to President Truman and Attorney General Tom Clark against what it calls "labor spying by Government agencies."

The protest stemmed from testimony at the Communist conspiracy trial here by a prosecution witness, Herbert A. Philbrick, Melrose, Mass., advertising man.

Philbrick, an FBI informant within the Communist Party, testified early this week that he joined the Boston local of the UOPWA and sent reports to the FBI on the union.

But the next day, he testified he did not report on the office workers or any union, but only "on the Communist activities in the organizing drive of the John Hancock (Insurance) Co." The office workers union is conducting the drive.

In addition to protesting to Washington, the union said it was warning all CIO unions in the Nation "of the danger of labor spies being planted in their organizations through the FBI."

In Boston, Local 3 of the Office Workers said in a separate statement that Philbrick never was a full-fledged member, but had only applied for membership.

The application now has been "unanimously rejected," the local said, "on the grounds that our union has no room for self-admitted labor spies."

The local said Philbrick's testimony did not claim any Communist activity in the local, but that the union's name had been brought into his statements.

"The only purpose of this," the union said, "could have been to injure the organizing campaign which the union is openly conducting among the badly underpaid John Hancock office workers."

Boston Woman Denies Philbrick Accusation

Sonoma, Calif., April 15 (AP).—Martha Fletcher of Boston today denied pro-Russian statements attributed to her by Herbert A. Philbrick, a Government witness at the New York Communist conspiracy trail.

Philbrick, an FBI informant within Communist ranks, said Tuesday that Mrs. Fletcher led Communist unit discussions in the historic Beacon Hill section of Boston in early 1948.

"She said war between the United States and Soviet Russia would be an unjust war," Philbrick testified, "and in such an instance it was the duty of the Communist Party to fight against such an unjust war which she said would be an imperialist war on the part of the United States.

"She said the imperialist war should be converted into civil war."

Mrs. Fletcher, staying here with friends, declared:

"I emphatically deny that I have ever made such a statement as charged by a Mr. Philbrick, to anyone at anytime.

Rep. McSweeney Plans Senate Race in 1950

Representative McSweeney (D., Ohio) said yesterday he plans to run for the Senate in 1950 "if Governor Lausche does not make the race."

Reports have been current in Ohio that Lausche, now in his second term as Governor, will seek the Democratic nomination for the seat now held by Senator Taft, Republican.

Labor officials in Ohio and the Nation have said they will try to unseat Taft in 1950 because of his co-authorship of the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Austrian Price Protest

Vienna, Austria, April 15 (U.P.).—Ten thousand workers at the huge Donatz steel plant in the British zone of Austria struck for two hours today to protest a recent increase of meat prices in Styria Province.

Stunt Man Parachutes From Golden Gate Span

San Francisco, April 15 (AP).—A stunt man parachuted from the Golden Gate Bridge today and lived. The drop is about 250 feet.

He was Robert L. Niles, 22, of Oakland, who says he does that sort of thing for a thrill.

He was uninjured when he was picked up from San Francisco Bay.

Only one other person—a girl—is known to have survived a free fall from the span. Her back was broken but she recovered.

Woman, Son Hurt as Wind Crashes Sign

Wind gusts which hit 54 miles per hour blew down a 34-foot metal parking lot sign on 14th st. near K st. nw., yesterday, pinning a District woman and her 7-year-old son under it.

The woman, Mrs. Frances Scancerali, 1416 N st. nw., was admitted to Emergency Hospital with a fractured vertebra. The boy, Peter, was treated for cuts and bruises at the hospital and discharged. The accident occurred at 4:15 p. m.

The sign was on property of Otts Service Stations on the west side of 14th st. north of K. Supporting it were two 13-foot all-wooden beams extending from concrete bases.

Passersby Rescue Them

According to eyewitnesses, Mrs. Scancerali and her son, walking south on 14th st., were within a step of clearing the sign when the beams snapped off at the base.

R. E. Wieland, 1410 North McKinley rd., Arlington, a clerk in Kay's Men's Shop, 1010 14th st. nw., who saw the accident, said:

"It looked for a minute like they had walked beyond it. Then the sign came crashing on their heads."

Wieland and passersby extricated the victims who were taken to the hospital by Fire Department Rescue Squad No. 1.

An unidentified Marine cut his hand on a neon glass part of the sign as he aided rescue attempts.

Globe Falls From Post

Yesterday's wind, which the Weather Bureau said averaged 30 miles an hour, also blew a heavy globe off a lamp post in front of the Occidental Restaurant on Pennsylvania ave. near 15th st. nw.

The globe smashed into a sedan parked in a no-parking zone in front of the restaurant, denting the car's roof.

The auto, bearing diplomatic tag No. 350 was registered in the name of Adolf Alarcon, 2829 16th st. nw., agricultural attache of the Mexican Embassy.

In another prank played by the wind, police were called to Florida ave. and California st. nw., by a report that a tree was about to topple. A top section had been broken off and was lodged in lower branches. Firemen lowered it by ropes from a 25-foot ladder.

Colder Today

The weather will be sunny, windy and colder today with a high of about 60, the forecaster predicted yesterday.

Low yesterday was 53 at 5:58 a. m. and high was 86 at 3:30 p. m.

The high winds, the forecaster said, are the result of a "storm center" moving over the southern Great Lakes region.

2800 Employes

2 Factories To Shorten Work Week

Hartford, Conn., April 15 (U.P.).—Two factories today announced they were reducing their work week.

The Corbin screw division of the American Hardware Corp., New Britain, goes on a 32-hour week Monday. The present schedule is 40 hours for 800 production workers.

At Waterbury, the Chase Brass & Copper Co., now on a four-day week, begins a three-day week Monday. About 2000 hourly workers are affected.

State Labor Commissioner John J. Egan said that factory employment totaled 367,420, as compared with 412,000 a year ago. Nearly 13,000 workers had been laid off in February and March, this year, he said. Most of the reductions were in metal-working industries.

Ansco Camera to Drop 150 Employes Monday

Binghamton, N. Y., April 15 (AP).—The Ansco camera division of the General Aniline and Film Corp. will lay off 150 of its 750 employes on Monday.

The company said a business decline was the reason. It announced that more layoffs would follow. None is planned, however, in the film production division. Ansco employs about 4700 here.

All Government Workers In U. S. Total 6,083,000

More than six million persons were working for Federal, State and local governments in the United States in January, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

The exact total, 6,083,000, amounted to one in every 9.4 wage earners in the Nation.

The January figure was an increase in Government workers of 41,000 since October. Their January wage total was $1,340,000,000.

State and local government payrolls accounted for nearly two thirds of the total number. Federal employment for the month was 2,089,000.

Crook Exhausts Self Mauling Unlocked Safe

Danville, Va., April 15 (U.P.).—The crook who exhausted himself battering and mauling the safe at the Danville Curb Market gave up without reaching the money inside. Police said today he might like to know it wasn't locked.

Union Boycott Held Illegal

A National Labor Relations Board trial examiner yesterday, for the first time under the Taft-Hartley Act, found a union guilty of an illegal recognition boycott, and at the same time found another local of the same union guilty of an illegal sympathy strike.

Involved are Locals 145 and 191 of the AFL Teamsters, and three Bridgeport, Conn., stores—Howland Dry Goods Co., D. M. Read Co., and Meigs & Co.

Local 145 called a strike against Bridgeport United Delivery, Inc., which rents delivery trucks to the three stores. The strike was for recognition as bargaining agent for the delivery concern's employes.

Examiner William F. Scharnikow held that Local 145 violated the Taft-Hartley Act by picketing the three stores.

The examiner further found that Local 191 violated the Taft-Hartley law when two of its officials instructed union members, who were drivers for the Reed Co., not to cross the Local 145 picket line in front of the company's warehouse.

A contention by the unions that the case does not come within NLRB jurisdiction on the ground that interstate commerce is not involved was rejected. The examiner said each of the stores received more than 90 per cent of its merchandise from outside the State.

The examiner recommend that the board order the unions to cease their illegal recognitions and sympathy activities. The examiner's finding are subject to review by the board if any of the parties appeals within 20 days.

UAW Wins Election at Allis Chalmers

Springfield, Ill., April 15 (AP).—The CIO United Auto Workers today won a representation election at two Allis Chalmers plants formerly represented by the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers.

The vote was 1974 for the UAW, 722 for the UFEW, and 26 for neither union.

The election was ordered by the National Labor Relations Board. It marked the first triumph in the UAW drive to unite all farm equipment industry workers in one union.

The CIO executive board had ordered the farm equipment union to merge with the UAW, but UFEW leaders defied the order.

John W. Livingston, international vice president of the AUW, said the election was "the beginning of the end of FE.

"It is also a triumph of CIO policy in the farm equipment industry," he said, "and a win for clean, democratic American trade unionism."

He predicted similar UAW victories in elections at the Chicago McCormick plant of International Harvester next Tuesday and at the Oliver plant in South Bend, Ind., next Thursday.

Livingston said "FE now has less than 30,000 members, while the UAW claims 1,020,000 and is America's biggest union."

Livingston said the newly created UAW local 1027 would meet Saturday night to elect a contract negotiating committee.

Officers of the Farm Equipment Workers Union declined comment immediately on the election.

Amazing Bee Own Compass

to the right and straight back, the bee all the time wiggling its tummy very vigorously.

Experiments Give Proof

Now, this sounds incredible but Dr. von Frisch is a scientist of much reputation and he has made many, many experiments which prove it: By the number of turns that are made in a certain length of time in the wedding dance the bee announces how far distant the nectar is, right down to a matter of yards.

But that is child's play compared with the fact that not only can the bee indicate distance but also direction. Dr. von Frisch proved this one by putting a scented cardboard 200 meters south and another 200 meters north of the hive. If the scout bee returned from the "south" hive, his hive-mates went only there.

How? Here it comes . . .

The bee varies the direction of the "straight run" part of the wedding dance so that the angle of it is exactly the angle formed by the sun, the hive and the feeding place—the place where the nectar is found.

If the angle formed by these points is 120 degrees, for example, the bee does that exact angle in his dance.

Can Give Direction

What is more, the bee is able to tell the position of the sun and give direction even though he can't see the sun directly. In a series of tests, Dr. von Frisch rigged it so the bee saw only blue sky.

The fantastic little thing could still give direction. He does it, the good doctor deduced, through observing variations in polarized light.

Dr. von Frisch demonstrated his findings by moving pictures in which the bee's dance was very clearly discernible.

Because his research seemed "rather fantastic" even to himself, Dr. von Frisch thought maybe it was because his own bees were more scientific from being in the atmosphere so long. So he took a new batch of "normal bees." And got the same results.

3 Navy Men Die in Blast On Destroyer

Pearl Harbor, April 15 (AP).—Three Navy men were fatally injured and 11 were injured in an explosion in a gun mount aboard the destroyer Hollister yesterday.

The gun crew captain was killed outright and two others died shortly before midnight at Alea Naval Hospital. Two others were in critical condition.

The explosion occurred during antiaircraft practice 40 miles at sea from Pearl Harbor. One side of the twin five-inch gun mount was blown out.

Young 'Boom' Talk Denied

I have heard nothing further on the subject since.

"As to what the score is, I wouldn't know."

General Vaughan said he had not tried to bring the matter up again because it was not in his province.

"I did," he said, "suggest to the President that Gordon Young be reappointed, and the President, I think, is favorably disposed to do it."

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, a career man in the Army, is the Engineer Commissioner of the District. He and Commissioner Guy Mason, a Democrat, together with Commissioner J. Russell Young, a Republican, constitute the city's governing board.

General Vaughan said he had much more right to have an opinion in the case of General Young than he did in the case of his civilian namesake.

He said that the six outstanding citizens who called on him at the White House in behalf of Commissioner Young were well qualified to make recommendations in connection with the city's government.

Qualifications Listed

He said that they advanced three reasons why Commissioner Young should be kept at his post in the District Building:

1. He has done a good job and gets along well with people.

2. It would be a mistake to change the bipartisan aspect of the present Board of Commissioners.

3. Commissioner Young seems to be as well qualified as anybody else who has been suggested, and perhaps better qualified.

General Vaughan concluded the interview by saying that, while he had relayed these arguments, he was not advising President Truman because it was not his business to do so.

Democrats Reaffirm Support of Morgan

The District Democratic Central Committee yesterday reaffirmed "it's unanimous and wholehearted support" of the candidacy of Thomas P. Morgan, jr., for District Commissioner.

The statement, issued by James William Bryan on behalf of the committee, came after a story in The Washington Post Friday declaring the race for the post is wide open. Morgan has the central committee's indorsement and is considered the "official" Democratic candidate for the job now held by John Russell Young.

The new statement said that Morgan's long experience in District affairs, "his wide and varied talents, his support of the policies of the Democratic Party, his known honesty and integrity admirably qualify him" for the post.

The statement pointed out that Morgan has been "a leading advocate of home rule and suffrage" for the District and added that he "can be relied upon to lead the fight to bring democracy to the Nation's Capital."

$50,000 Asked To Improve Negro School

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Gloucester, Va., April 15.—The Gloucester County Board of Supervisors, in what appeared to be a last-ditch defense of school officials facing sentence for contempt of court, tonight asked the State for $50,000 to improve its Negro high school.

The supervisors also authorized Commonwealth's Attorney John T. Du Val to confer with Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond on the possibility of borrowing money from outside sources. Du Val said he had an appointment with the attorney general on Tuesday.

The request for $50,000, which the school board disclosed it had approved on Wednesday, will be sent to the State Board of Education. The money would be taken from the State Literary Fund, which has been used over the years for school construction.

Officials have been informed, however, that the Literary Fund has been completely exhausted and that some seven million dollars worth of construction requests are ahead of the Gloucester bid.

School Board Chairman Stanley T. Gray, who said the board has approved an outside loan if the advance from the Literary Fund is not forthcoming, described the $50,000 figure as "the absolute minimum" which would be required to repair and improve the county's Negro high school to place it on a par with the white high schools.

Federal Judge Sterling Hutchinson, Richmond, who has found the superintendent of schools and the school board in contempt of court for failure to equalize white and Negro facilities, announced today he would pronounce sentence on May 4.

The jurist has said he would take into account efforts by school officials to comply with his order since the contempt ruling. The sentence is a matter of his own discretion.

A proposal to float a $300,000 bond issue for Negro school improvements was voted down on March 31, six weeks after the court's findings, by 591 to 368 in a special referendum.

Chairman Gray told the board of supervisors that a committee from the Gloucester Teachers Association had appeared before the school board on Manday asking that all teachers' salaries be increased 15 per cent begining next September.

Sen. George Says Spending Must Be Cut

Senator George (D., Ga.) yesterday offered his support to an economy drive started Thursday by two Republican colleagues.

At the same time, Representative Taber (R., N. Y.), who was chairman of the House Appropriations Committee in the GOP-controlled Eightieth Congress, said a tax increase was inevitable unless spending were cut. He declared the Democratic-controlled House had voted $4,200,000,000 more in appropriations than was voted last year.

Senator George's stand on spending followed a statement Thursday by Senators Wherry (R., Nebr.) and Bridges (R., N. H.) that Congress must curtail spending or face a tax increase or further deficit. George is a veteran member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Would Cut Foreign Aid

"The acid test will come," he said, "on our appropriations for foreign spending—the ECA, the Atlantic pact and similar measures.

"Nobody can expect members of Congress to cut down on our domestic programs unless we first make a reduction in foreign spending. If we're going to pare down anywhere we must start there."

Wherry and Bridges had predicted that at the present rate of spending, the Nation would be faced with the alternatives of a five-billion-dollar tax increase or a return to deficit financing.

Taber levelled his guns directly at the Democratic leadership. They were, he declared, "setting an all-time high in peacetime spending and the momentum is increasing."

Juggling of Figures Claimed

"The Democratic majority," he added, "is making desperate efforts to give the impression that substantial savings have been made in Government spending. There has been some high-handed juggling of figures designed to indicate to the casual reader that cuts have been made under the Administration's original budget requests."

He called this a "dangerous trend" and said that unless it "is reversed the American people can count on a tax increase this year."

Parents Held In Death of Starved Baby

Chicago, April 15 (AP).—a story of filth and squalor surrounding the death of an undernourished baby was told in grim inquest proceedings today.

Dr. Harry G. Leon, coroner's physician, testified the child, Kathleen King, 4 months old, died of starvation and he found her body "encrusted with dirt up to her chest" and covered with sores and welts.

He said an autopsy showed "absolutely no food" in the child's stomach.

Deputy Coroner Oscar Tucker, who recessed the inquiry until Tuesday, recommended that the parents, Martin and Ellen King, be charged with manslaughter. The Kings are held without charge by police.

Neighbors had complained that the baby and her 4-year-old sister, Theresa, were being neglected.

Mrs. King, 37, testified she had fed the baby regularly. She expressed disbelief when Dr. Leon testified the child weighed 5½ pounds.

King, 42, an unemployed roofer who is buying the five-apartment building in which he lives, did not testify.

Chemical Delays Cancer Progress Up to 215 Days

Palo Alto, Calif., April 15 (U.P.).—Stanford University today reported a new chemical successfully delayed the progress of cancer for periods up to 215 days.

The chemical, aminopterin, an antifolic acid chemical, was used by Dr. Harold K. Faber. Faber said the disease was suspended for periods from 83 to 215 days in 15 of the children tested.

Aminopterin has no effect on cancer itself, but does temporarily relieve bleeding and prostration, the distressing symptoms of acute leukemia. However, the leukemia itself continues to develop and the patient eventually dies, Faber said.

D. C. Commissioner

President Truman and his aides are reported to be scrutinizing with unusual care the qualifications of candidates for the post of District Commissioner. A citizen of high standing and capacity is sought. Apparently the President is looking for a Commissioner who will be a credit to the Truman Administration as well as to the city. In spite of some slips, the President has a good record in choosing men for public office. He is known also to be deeply interested in the welfare of the District of Columbia. It would be surprising, in these circumstances, if he did not make every effort to draft a District citizen of the highest caliber to succeed Commissioner John Russell Young.

The President has another interest in the local commissionership. Being eager to restore home rule to the District, he has urgent need for an official in the District government to whom he can look for counsel and support in this undertaking. The President is much too busy to give any detailed attention to the home rule movement. Yet his influence is a vital factor in that movement, and it is only reasonable that he should have in an official position some trusted associate who could work with him in bringing about this long-delayed reform.

Especially if the home rule bill, which is now being energetically pressed by Senator Kefauver, is to be enacted at this session of Congress, the District government will need at its head a man of understanding and stature to aid the transition from absentee control to home rule. We can think of no time in the city's history when it has been more important than now to find the right man to head the local government. His politics will be relatively unimportant, but his ability to fit in with the proposed new order and perhaps to take the lead in setting up the new government is a matter of great concern to the President as well as to every civic group in the District.

Nineteenth Report

Members of the Hoover Commission formally wound up their work and went home several weeks ago. Their last official meeting was March 11. At this meeting they put the finishing touches on some of their more controversial recommendations, the ones which since then have continued to flow from the press. The ostensible task of the commission now has been fulfilled. But in a broader sense the real job—of turning recommendations into reality—is still to be done.

This is a congressional responsibility, beyond the scope of the commission. Only Congress can redeem the considerable investment of confidence it made in Mr. Hoover and his colleagues when it asked them to redesign some sense and order into the administrative structure of the Government. The commission could take the attitude that its part of the bargain is done—and, on the whole, well done. Our criticism of some of the detailed proposals does not indicate disapproval of the commission's general blueprint.

But members of the Hoover Commission are conscious that their responsibility is not yet over and will not be over until Congress finishes the job. They are talking of another meeting some time in April. The commission's statutory life does not expire until May 8, and it still has a small unexpended balance of its congressional appropriation, which totaled $1,938,600, instead of the $100,000 we erroneously mentioned the other day. One topic for decision at this contemplated meeting will be whether to issue a nineteenth report summarizing the commission's work and recommendations. A subcommittee is now preparing a summary document. Another topic likely to be discussed is whether commission members should join the citizens' committee that has been formed to push for congressional action on their recommendations.

Inasmuch as several of the commissioners are members of Congress or officials of the Administration, they must consider the propriety of membership in a pressure group. This is not true of the others, including Mr. Hoover, whose "last public office" has been the chairmanship of the commission. It would seem quite out of character for him to let the commission proposals go by default. And it would be a tragic waste if the commission's labors ended up in a congressional blind alley for want of public interest and pressure for action.

Policy In Asia

Secretary Acheson's blunt excoriation of the 1.5 billion dollar aid-to-Nationalist China plan might persuade the senatorial planners to look again at Asian realities. When will our public men realize that what this country is facing in Asia is a situation outside pat formulas and calling for a resilient diplomacy? There are facts to recognize in Asia which, as William James would have put it, are stubborn and irreducible. One of them is that an entirely new trade complex has got to be built up for Japan. It is impossible to restore the prewar commercial relation resting on American buying of Japan's raw silk, and the task is on our doorstep as the occupation authority to facilitate the opening up of new markets for Japan. Until that is done the Japanese will continue to be a load on the back of the American taxpayer. Trade in Asia admits of little prejudice, though prejudice abounds in Australia; and just before the irruption of the Chinese Communists, former Premier Chang Chun was exploring the possibility of reviving and increasing Sino-Japanese commerce.

As for the internal situation in China, nobody knows how this will work out—neither an expert on China nor an outsider with the wisdom of Solomon. A few things are clear from the information available to this Government from its representatives in China and its military mission in Nanking. They are that the Nationalists have routed 90 per cent of American material into Communist hands; that the Nationalists would not take American military advice; that the Communists cannot be stopped unless America embarks itself on an anti-Communist campaign in China. This is said to be the summing up of the report that General Barr, head of the military mission in Nanking, gave the Senate in camera. The American people are entitled to a look at this report. There was perhaps some reason, as long as Chiang Kai-shek was in power, to keep the Wedemeyer report hidden; none for the secrecy cloaking the Barr report. Americans have a right to know the data about policies that are advocated for their support. Incidentally, the Barr statement adds a humorous touch to the statement of Senator Knowland that fresh supplies must be routed to the Nationalists lest they fall into the hands of the Communists!

The plain fact is that as a result of our rigid and doctrinaire policies American diplomacy is unable to function in China, though all the correspondents are reporting schisms and contests for power among the Chinese Communists. Our diplomacy must have room for maneuver in the fluid situations which characterize all Asia. Anticommunism is not enough, especially when the communism is not readily identifiable, and is sometimes of the radish variety, i. e., red outside and white within. Surely the way that Moscow is eliminating from the satellite countries men who were not actually trained in Moscow should give Congress pause about China. Oversimplification of what is going on in Asia may be downright misleading as well as a dangerous guide to policy. This is what Mr. Churchill, who is notoriously ignorant of Asiatic affairs east of India, indulged in in his Boston speech. The Times of London rightly rebukes him in the following words:

> It is not true, for instance, as he said, that the collapse of China is due to "Communist attack and intrigue"; it is due to the chaos and disillusion left by the long years of war and to the failure of the old regime to provide efficient government and a decent livelihood for the peasant masses who see in Mao Tse-tung's program the only hope of a better life.

However, there are American interests to serve in Asia which, unlike the truth in China, are easily discernible. On the military side they can best be safeguarded by the establishment of centers of security, defensive and protective in character, not offensive. On the diplomatic side the American interest requires a constant quest to drive a wedge between authentic nationalism and Russian communism, though there could be just as much danger in championing nationalism as in combating everything that looks like communism. In this connection the best ally we can think of in dealing with a fermenting Asia is India's Nehru. From Secretary Acheson, apparently, there will be no support for the old type of colonialism which is fighting a rearguard battle in Indonesia and Indo-China. On the contrary, both the Dutch and the French are being pressed to get out of an impasse before, as General Marshall warned them, they bleed to death. This diplomatic activity requires great tact, great patience, great art. The commercial task is easier. Mr. Stassen has suggested a Marshall Plan for Asia to be named after General MacArthur. Something of the sort must one day be tried—not directly, however, either as an anti-Communist device or as the spearhead of intervention in internal quarrels, but as a constructive move in creating new trade and clearing out old trade channels.

Strain At A Gnat

The Senate subcommittee which has put the Lodge resolution on the shelf until May 16 so as to await the results of a survey conducted by a newspaper that is hostile to the measure seems to have a distorted view as to the value of propaganda. The subcommittee should have asked itself what value the returns in this survey will have. It is admitted that the questionnaire was sent out along with biased material condemning the Lodge amendment. If a survey of this sort should bring in an overwhelmingly negative response, it would mean nothing more than that many people are willing to give the sort of parrot call that is asked of them. We fail to see that this kind of inquiry has any bearing upon the merits of legislation.

The Lodge resolution was carefully drafted after much study and deliberation to overcome a grave defect in our electoral system. Many objections have been raised against it, but each of them has been thoroughly analyzed and found to be lacking in substance. The protests that continue to be made seem to reflect blind opposition to change of any sort. In our opinion, a subcommittee that proves sensitive to alleged weaknesses in this proposed constitutional amendment and continues to ignore the infinitely more dangerous defects in the present electoral system is straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel.

Occupation Statute

The new Occupation Statute could not possibly have been popular in western Germany. By its very nature this document was bound to be a kind of Diktat imposed by the occupying powers. It was bound to be denounced accordingly. Any German politician who praised it would instantly brand himself as a collaborationist with Germany's conquerors. The purpose of the document is to keep certain powers in the hands of the occupying authorities for the time being. The list of reserved subjects is a long one, including foreign relations and foreign trade as well as the more obvious fields of disarmament, reparations and foreign claims arising from the war. Mr. Acheson has hastened to explain that the new federal government in western Germany would have wide freedom of action even in these fields—so long as the final power of veto remained with the occupation authorities.

Although patriotic Germans will find the new statute bitter medicine, they cannot in all fairness claim that it is vindictive or humiliating to German pride. The statute can be understood only in a wider context. It is a necessary and temporary complement of the new west German constitution, which will give the German people their first measure of democratic self-government in more than 16 years. The new federal republic is to be admitted on an equal basis to the Organization for European Economic Cooperation and also to the Council of Europe, which will have its capital in a setting of symbolic appropriateness at Strasbourg on the Rhine.

It is important to remember, too, that the Occupation Statute must be reviewed within 18 months "with a view to extending the jurisdiction of the German authorities in the legislative, executive and judicial fields." This, surely, is evidence that the Western Allies are not putting the clock back. Their agreement of last week puts postwar Germany for the first time on the road toward membership in the European community, and that is a consummation devoutly to be desired.

Afterthought

It appears that our reflections on Thursday—"Thus To Revisit"—on the limitations of radio as a purveyor of news during the two-day pressmen's strike this week did not sit well with some of our friends of the radio industry. This is unfortunate. The vein in which the editorial was expressed was not dissimilar from that of the editorial "The Silent Press," which appeared after the one-day quickie strike of the week before. And in that piece we expressed our gratitude to one of radio's luminaries, Mr. Edward R. Murrow, who, in a discussion of the community's loss, mentioned the loss sustained in such matters as the lighting of log fires, the wrapping of fish, etc. On Thursday in the editorial, "Thus To Revisit," we wrote on the text that one lesson of the strike was that "the radio is not an entirely satisfactory substitute for newspapers." However, we omitted to say a word about the service that radio had rendered during this unhappy period.

We hasten now to make amends. The fact is that the Washington radio stations worked night and day during the newspaper shutdown to give a news service. And a gallant job it was, too. The stations forgot self-interest and offered every facility at their command to give news-hungry listeners a comprehensive picture of what would have appeared in the newspapers. The Washington Post appreciates this splendid spirit in the public interest and wishes to thank every one concerned for the way the stations carried on while the newspapers were silent.

Specialists For Japan

In connection with the great amount of current criticism regarding Japan's slow industrial recovery, a letter just received from William S. Vaughan, industrial adviser and chief of industry SCAP, may be of public interest. Mr. Vaughan has just completed one year in Japan following his positions in Washington as industrial adviser to the Italian Technical Mission and member of Allied Control in charge of Italian Industrial Reconstruction.

From Tokyo, Mr. Vaughan says, "Lack of industrial knowledge and inability to estimate comparative values in both the economic and political fields lies back of much misstatement of fact recently made in the press. To carry out Minister Dodge's suggestions means the need of many men who can go into an industry and by looking around spot irregular practices which if allowed to continue make for inefficient and black market activity."

Mr. Vaughan has initiated a policy in Japan of using men from the States who are old hands in sheet steel manufacture, hot rolled, cold rolled, open hearth specialists, coal and petroleum experts, etc. One consultant from the Gary Works of U. S. Steel had not been at the Yawata plant of Japan Iron and Steel Company for two days before he had suggested changes that within a month resulted in an increase of production from 180 tons to 420 tons per shift of eight hours.

On an inspection trip, Mr. Vaughan discovered that certain Japanese industries which had been allocated relatively small tonnages of raw materials were able to operate a program that actually required four times the allocation. These companies were intently producing excessive quantities of scrap which found its way into the black market.

In the rubber industry, supposed to make a given number of tires from so much rubber, the Japs are mixing scrap with the crude rubber we are giving them in order to make as much as 25 per cent more tires. These extra tires are sold on the black market while the legitimate number which go into the export and domestic market are not as good quality as SCAP figured on or paid for.

"It takes experts and many of them to spot these things," William Vaughan concluded. "Industry division and the Japanese government are after such malpractices. It is expected increased production will result from their surveys but specialists are needed, many, many more specialists."

Industrial Planning

I have read with much interest the letters of Mr. Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers and Mr. James McGraw, the well-known publisher (letters published March 30 and April 11) regarding the maintenance of full employment.

However, it seems to me that both of these gentlemen are wrong. Mr. Reuther wants the Government to run its own plants in competition with private industry when the latter fails to supply the wares and jobs the country needs. While Mr. McGraw wants to leave the economic planning for the Nation in the hands of our industrial leaders—men who owe no responsibility to the American people, but only to their stockholders.

Our social system is divided into two different spheres, a political one and an economic one. The political sphere is the Government whose power is derived from the people. The economic sphere is a semi-feudal system called capitalism, whose power rests on the ownership of the means of production. It maintains itself by exploiting these means for profit.

Our political sphere is democratic—our economic sphere is not. We do not want booms and depressions, with their high prices and lots of work, and their low prices and no work. But we cannot stop them, as they are the result of the money management of the economic sphere, which is not run for the benefit of all of us, but for the profit of a minority group. Therefore, I say that matters of broad economic policy, such as the control of booms and depressions, should be under the direction of the Government.

I suggest that the President be given the power to appoint production planning boards over key industries. The duties of these boards would be plan ahead the quantity goods that should be produced by the industry as a whole, and to assign to each concern a quota.

Investor Assurance

What you and Mr. Willard Thorp both need, if your April 8 editorial "Assurance For Investors" represents your views, is a basic knowledge of foreign loan procedure as it worked before the war. The risk of confiscation by a friendly government without fair compensation to American investors was then and still remains extremely remote. The risk of an unfriendly (or revolutionary) democratic government, confiscating American property without fair compensation has been and remains a slight one. The greater risk to our investments abroad, therefore, does not arise from any action by the friendly or unfriendly governments of that country, but by invasion by totalitarian states who ipso facto do not recognize private property rights.

The greatest deterrent to the foreign investor before the war remains in effect today. This is the ability to obtain dollars for his foreign currency earned abroad in order to return it home to pay stockholders or bondholders in a medium of exchange they can spend here. Unless, when we invest abroad, we wish to go abroad to spend our dividends in the currencies our funds have earned, then we need, more than any treaties guaranteeing us against confiscation, treaties that will guarantee us, let us say, a definite percentage of dollar exchange from the supply of such exchange available to foreign governments each year, with which to transmit earnings to owners in the United States.

Jefferson's Version Of Equality

I should like to comment on your news story of April 8 from Charlotte, N. C., telling of a pencilled note signed "T. Jefferson" which purports to discount the sentiments of equality Jefferson wrote into the Declaration of Independence in 1776.

It is error to say "On page 407 is a footnote by Blackstone, saying . . .," although the error is understandable. All sacred and historic publications of great peoples and professions are overlarded with successive annotations and targums by the respective later editors.

The words of Blackstone himself, in his lectures in 1758 and as published in 1765, are carefully preserved in all texts to this day, with his own minor footnotes with preservation of his original page references where the pages are not actually reproduced as such. The note referred to by the Charlotte story is one of the notes of Mr. Edward Christian, a British Tory, indeed first appearing in the 1793 London edition plainly advertising it as Mr. Christian's edition.

Mr. Christian was plainly commenting on England's defeat by the American Revolution sparked with the Declaration of Independence, followed by the French Revolution. It is not to be assumed that that 1793 London edtion attained sizable circulation in America immediately. Jefferson, like most other educated Americans interested in law, must have had in his own library a copy of the popular 1772 edition of Blackstone.

The University of Virginia, American (Tucker) edition of about 1807, which includes references to Virginia law, pointedly omits that note of Mr. Christian while reproducing others. Mr. Jefferson was undoubtedly familiar with that publication. Your own report properly raises the question why Secretary of State or President Jefferson, in middle life, should have been browsing in and marking up the 1793 volume of a North Carolina gentleman.

Handwriting experts are entitled to their opinions, even as to marginal scribbling 150 years old. If the writing is indeed Jefferson's, it must be read ironically or else as directing the epithet "foolish," not to Blackstone's Law Commentaries, not to the sentiment of equality, but to the diatribe of Mr. Christian. Jefferson's egalitarianism, consistently expressed in voluminous writings and speeches down to the very end of his life, dispels any possible suspicion that in or about the year he founded the (Democratic) Republican Party he casually or secretly recorded his apostasy in another gentleman's British importation.

Our own Freedom Train proves more conclusively than could a cloud of handwriting experts, that Thomas Jefferson favored the principles of Christ over those of Mr. Christian. Jeffersonian philosophy is illustrated by a decision of the highest court of West Virginia, in 1892, in State v. Peel Splint Coal Co. as cited by William Draper Lewis' American edition of Blackstone 100 years later, in a rival footnote to the same section of Blackstone, viz.,

"It would be vain to look to the laws of England, written or unwritten, for a declaration or institution which made all men equal before the law; for by the laws of that kingdom, from the earliest institutions of Alfred down to the present time, the whole framework of the government was based upon classes, titles, ranks and precedence: There was first the royal family; secondly, the highest order of ecclesiastic office; thirdly, the nobility; fourthly, the esquires and gentry; fifthly, the yeomen, and lastly, 'the rest of the commonalty are tradesmen, artificers and laborers.'"

Last Stand In Votes Fight

By Malvina Lindsay

Men Of East Dig In

AN OLD RECORD is being replayed for a listening world in the beginnings of the woman suffrage battle in the Middle East. "Where have I heard that before?" is the thought of many American and British women as lofty, sentimental pronouncements on woman's place are thundered by men leaders in the Arab world and in Greece.

These statements show timing. Recently the United Nations Commission on the Status of Women, meeting in Beirut, Lebanon, heard publicly in its statistical reports that suffrage was still denied women in Egypt, Afghanistan, Ethiopia, Greece, Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Trans-Jordan and Yemen, as well as in some other countries. Also, recently Egypt's women suffrage leaders, encouraged by a few men intellectuals, have been organizing an active woman's rights party. Feminist groups in other countries in that area have been picking up in vitality.

That was what the Commission on the Status of Women had hoped—that national women leaders would push their own movements for the vote rather than have a U. N. agency accused of stirring up internal troubles.

NOW ALL the arguments that figured in past struggles for the vote are reverberating around the Mediterranean, particularly in Egypt, where the modern woman and the veiled one brush elbows. The dominant Saadist Party in Egypt is particularly aroused over the threat of a new feminist party. Recent oratory of Saadist Party spokesmen, also of old-line political leaders in Greece and other countries in this area, follows the standard antisuffrage argument once heard in the West. These are its points:

Woman's place is the home. (American spellbinders declared, "The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.")

Woman can't be half man in her activities. (The Western version was that voting would make women masculine and expose them to the iniquities of "mixed" polling places.)

Nature has divided the race into sexes and we must follow nature's law. (The West fell back on the usual weapon against any alteration of the status quo: "You can't change human nature.")

The suffrage movement is a sign of the sickness of this generation. (In the West it was said that women as usual were leading the world to perdition.)

Everyone cries out for rights. Is there no one to think of duty? (This cherished bromide of the privileged and the comfortable was used by Western antisuffragists, particularly cartoonists, in their argument that women wanted the vote so they could gad around and neglect their homes, husbands and children.)

Women (a) will vote the way their husbands do, thereby merely doubling the vote, and (b) will vote with the wrong elements. (In this country the "woman of the street" was the bogey. It was predicted her class would go to the polls in hordes while the good women stayed at home.)

FEMINISTS in Egypt are drawing history on their opponents by citing the political achievements of Cleopatra. The fact that Arabic literature is full of stories of warrior queens and of women leaders is proving embarrassing to those trying to deny political power to women.

The Commission on the Status of Women has had to work strategically in the explosive issue of women's political rights. One reason the American delegation at Beirut opposed asking the U. N. General Assembly for a convention guaranteeing the political rights of all women was that it was felt this was not good tactics now in view of the Arab situation. It did support a convention for consideration of the conflict of national laws regarding women's nationality, domicile, marriage and divorce.

These women's rights stirrings in the Middle East are one phase of the groundswell for human rights now going on throughout the world. In this the agencies of the U. N. can take no supergovernmental action. But who can tell how much the discussions in them and in the General Assembly have done to propel into action the men and women leading movements for human freedom?

Who can tell how much more action will be stirred by UNESCO's project to air to the world by radio and printed page the meaning of the Universal Human Rights Declaration adopted by the General Assembly at its Paris meeting?

"No Double Taxation"

Thanks for your reply to my letter of March 30—through your April 7 editorial, "No Double Taxation."

I am now perfectly satisfied that, if properly administered, the proposed law, with residence-affidavit and "offset" provisions, would do justice to Federal employes. I apologize.

I still have doubt, however, that raising the exemption to $4000 and adding a sales tax at this time is economically or politically wise.

McCarran's Prize Obstructionism

THE AWARD of the week for blocking and tackling and general all-around obstruction must go to that stout citizen from Nevada, Senator Pat McCarran. Although the competition has been keen, McCarran came through in splendid form, leaving the field far behind.

His outstanding achievement is in bottling up the proposal to change the Displaced Persons Act. For nearly four months as chairman of a subcommittee supposed to consider the matter, McCarran has done nothing.

In spite of repeated pleadings and proddings, no hearings have been held and none has been scheduled. McCarran is now in Nevada, presumably telling the 75,000 voters of that State, who have three times sent him to the Senate, how hard he works in Washington.

The latest prod came from five Republican Senators, Ives of New York, Ferguson of Michigan, Smith of New Jersey, Morse of Oregon and Saltonstall of Massachusetts. They took a step quite exceptional for that cozy club, the United States Senate, when they wrote to McCarran to ask him gently and respectfully but nonetheless firmly to get a move on.

They might have added, of course, that the indifference and unconcern of the two Republican members of the committee, Donnell of Missouri and Jenner of Indiana, have helped McCarran. The only member of the group who seems concerned is Senator McGrath of Rhode Island, and McGrath's attitude toward McCarran is that of a swimmer who encounters in the surf a stinging sea nettle. Better let it alone if you don't want it to sting you again.

WHILE the voter's memory is notoriously short, it can hardly have been forgotten what an important issue this was in the campaign last fall. West Virginia's Chapman Revercomb had bulldozed the Senate into accepting restrictions in a displaced-persons law aimed at Catholics and Jews.

As a result of those restrictions, only 14,468 DP's have come in since the act was adopted last June. GOP Candidate Thomas E. Dewey refused to go to West Virginia to speak for Revercomb, who was defeated.

McCarran's stubborn sitdown is pointed up by what the House is doing. A House Judiciary Subcommittee has approved changes that would correct most of the injustices in the present law, eliminating the requirement that 30 per cent of persons admitted must be of an agricultural background and 40 per cent of Baltic origin. Majority Leader John McCormack has made it virtually the first order of business to push for a more just law.

The House group approved moving the "cut off date" from December 22, 1945, as it is in the present law, to January 1, 1949. This would make it possible to admit those who have fled from iron curtain countries to refugee camps since the end of the war.

THIS COUNTRY is setting a miserable example to the world. Smaller countries—Sweden is one—have taken in refugees in far greater numbers in proportion to their populations. Thousands upon thousands of victims of war and dictatorship have spent years behind the barriers of despair in overcrowded camps.

If the Senate would act, the Displaced Persons Commission in the State Department is prepared to increase quotas rapidly. Beginnng in July 16,000 persons a month would come in.

Award Winner McCarran has another claim. He contributed his share toward stopping the pay of Reclamation Commissioner Michael Straus and Straus' assistant, Richard Boke.

McCarran was helping his friend, Senator Sheridan Downey of California, whose special and passionate mission it is to purge Straus and Boke. Pointing out that his committee—Judiciary could demand and get FBI reports, McCarran proposed that three Senators be named to call on President Truman to renew the request that the White House furnish such reports to the Un-American Activities Committee, covering particularly Straus and Boke.

This, it should be noted, was just after the Un-American group had turned over to Downey a supposedly confidential report on Straus. While the report contained such trivia as to be laughable, it was nevertheless an example of how careless committees are with confidential documents, thereby confirming the President's judgment in refusing to turn over FBI reports.

The House is enjoying an Easter recess. Unless the Senate means seriously to blast aside the deliberate roadblocks, that body might just as well follow the example of the House and take a long holiday.

Office Shift At Pentagon Snags Chiefs

Defense Secretary Louis A. Johnson's trade of offices with Army Secretary Kenneth C. Royall, has halted work on the elaborate walled-in $100,000 suite of offices for the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon.

Nearly half of the project's total estimated cost is said to have been spent, but officials said they hoped to salvage up to 75 per cent of this outlay.

Painters and carpenters had been working night and day to complete the proposed layout for the JCS adjacent to Secretary Johnson's office when he moved 768 feet up the hall. A stop order was put through and the Pentagon planners began devising ways of moving the Joint Chiefs' proposed working quarters so that they would still be under Secretary Johnson's wing.

This, they say, sounds a lot simpler than it is because it involves finding a brand-new 90,000-square foot patch of office space and driving it up neatly into day rooms, conference rooms, etc., with vaults for secret documents here and there and iron-barred windows for security purposes. Also involved is equipping these rooms with the complicated inter-communication systems which a defense secretary and his joint chiefs require.

Secretary Johnson's move to the elaborate suite of offices designed originally for the Secretary of War (the Pentagon was built by the Army in pre-unification days) is part of the general shifting of key Army, Air Force and Navy offices to a "centralized" location which he initiated immediately after taking office last month. This gathering of key personnel around the Defense Secretary's office involves moving an estimated total of 12,500 persons and is expected to take six months to complete.

Foot of Snow Falls Over Plains Area

Chicago, April 15 (AP).—It was winter in the Midwest today.

Snow blew down on the western Great Lakes area after snarling traffic and crippling power lines in the plains area. Snow was a foot deep in central Nebraska and 9½ inches at Fayette, Iowa.

Strong winds continued to blow over much of the north central area. In late afternoon, most of the snowfall was confined to southeastern Wisconsin, and the northern two-thirds of Illinois and Indiana. Madison, Wis., had two inches by mid-afternoon. It was lighter to the south, melting in Chicago's streets although it swirled around Loop buildings in heavy flurries.

Temperatures in the Midwest were chill, generally near freezing in the northern part. Rain mixed with snow fell in northern Ohio, and there were some thunderstorms in Pennsylvania and New York.

Loyalty Check Brings Arrest on '39 Murder Count

The Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday confirmed that a loyalty check on a New York City postoffice employe named Robert Sneed had led to his arrest on a 10-year-old Chicago murder charge.

The FBI said inquiry into Sneed's background identified him as Douglas McMiller, who had been indicted on January 30, 1939, on charges of having murdered Harnett Hicks of Chicago. Sneed-McMiller was arraigned last Tuesday before United States Commissioner Garret C. Carter and was held in $10,000 bail for removal to Chicago.

Farm Woman Emulates Christ's Agony

Konnersreuth, Germany, April 15 (U.P.).—The streets of this tiny Bavarian farming village were jammed today with thousands of persons who came to file by the bedside of a 51-year-old peasant woman who suffers the physical agony of Christ on the Cross every Good Friday.

Police lines kept the crowd in order as inside her stucco cottage. Therese Neumann sat bolt upright in her bed from early morning until midafternoon, bleeding profusely from her eyes, wrists, feet and head. The phenomenon has occurred every Good Friday since 1926 and has completely baffled medical authorities.

She is regarded by the townsfolk as a saint.

Therese wore a white shroud which, like the bed linen, was blood-soaked. She waved her arms gently and chanted unintelligibly in a low monotone, oblivious to the throngs.

Father Franz Nabor, parish priest who has had Therese under his care for 20 years, was at her bedside. He refused to allow pictures to be taken inside the room.

Neighbors say Therese, a tailor's daughter, had her first vision of Christ kneeling on a mountainside in 1926. At the moment she felt blood pouring from her heart, and later from her hands and feet. The following year she also bled from her head and eyes.

Village folk say Therese has lived for the past 23 years on the wafers she receives at daily communion.

They say she falls into a coma early each Good Friday and suffers until 3 p. m., the hour Christ died. Then she slowly reawakens and by Saturday night is completely recovered.

She goes to Holy Communion on Sunday and by Monday is again behind a plowhorse in the fields.

Statute Called Phenomenon; 'Tears' Cease

Syracuse, N. Y., April 15 (AP).—The chancellor of the Syracuse Catholic diocese termed today a "phenomenon" the appearance of liquid drops on the face of a broken St. Ann statue when kissed by a schoolgirl. No miracle was claimed.

Shirley Anne Martin reported that the liquid, which many witnesses called "tears," no longer appeared in the eyes of the three-inch plaster head when she pressed her lips to it.

In the first official statement from the diocesan office since throngs began gathering Wednesday at the home of the 11-year-old girl, the Rev. Robert E. Dillon, chancellor, said:

"From the number and the character of the witnesses who have observed the phenomenon, it is certain that drops of liquid have appeared on the face of the statue when the young girl held it and kissed it. The explanation of the fact or its significance has not been established.

Miracles Possible

"The possibility of miracles is established beyond doubt. Whether this phenomenon is an instance of supernatural power at work has not been established."

The girl's maternal grandfather, James Secreti, said he would build a shrine for the statue head on a vacant lot alongside his home and that of the Martins. The two houses are back to back.

Shirley Anne said that no liquid had appeared on the face of the statue, despite repeated efforts, since she appeared on a local television program last night.

Her mother, Mrs. Arthur E. Martin, said the statue no longer would be shown to the public from the Martin home, where thousands of persons of all faiths had gathered, some hoping for miraculous cures.

"It's a sin to carry it too far," Mrs. Martin said. "Anything pertaining to the Lord shouldn't be."

To Take Her Away

The girl's father, a milkman, said he planned to take Shirley Anne "out of town for a couple of days."

Mrs. Martin said neither she nor her daughter "claim any miracles." She said the statue was shown to the public "for whatever it might be worth."

J. Robert MacAllister, metallurgist and engineer, described what he said he saw as "incredible."

"There is moisture which appears to be coming from the eyes," he said. He added: "I have no explanation."

Lane Grants Good Friday Paroles to 32

Annapolis, Md., April 15 (AP).—Good Friday paroles, freeing 32 prisoners from Maryland jails, were announced today by the State House.

Four of those released by Governor Lane included men serving time on murder charges.

The list included a second parole for John Ford, 44, who had been sentenced to life in 1931 for murder.

Ford was first paroled in 1946, but a year later "became embroiled in an altercation with another colored man, presumably because of attentions paid his wife while he was imprisoned," the State House said.

The paroles were recommended by the State parole and probation department.

Parolees from Greater Washington were:

John Frederick Graff, jr., 17, who has served two years of an indeterminate four-year sentence imposed in Prince Georges County Circuit Court for larceny, involving a series of petty thefts.

Charles Wood, 23, who has served half a maximum three-year term imposed in Prince Georges court for larceny in the theft of a basket of tobacco.

Transcontinental Motor Freight Rates Raised 9%

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday authorized a 9 per cent increase in transcontinental motor freight rates.

The increase, effective May 1, applies only to traffic moving across the Rocky Mountains.

The motor freight carries proposed the change in February, 1948, in connection with upward rate revisions inside of each of the regional territories. Those increases were made in the wake of the postwar boosts in railroad freight rates.

The motor freight rate changes within the territories became effective without protest, but the transcontinental rate revision was suspended pending an ICC investigation. Business interests in Los Angeles, Oklahoma City, and Hutchinson, Kan., had protested.

The commission said yesterday that its inquiry showed the proposed transcontinental rate change to be "just and reasonable."

of every family in the United States."

On the other hand, Senator Murray (D., Mont.) coauthor of several health measures, said the Taft-Smith-Donnell bill would "lead directly into the Russian system of state medicine." It was, he declared, "a charity medical care proposal" offering "free, socialized medicine to some 20 per cent of the people."

The American Medical Association, meanwhile, came forward with its own proposal. In a meeting at Hollywood, Fla., the Associated Press reported, one of its representatives proposed a national coordinating agency for various voluntary, prepaid health insurance already in operation. He suggested a meeting at Chicago to work out details.

The proposal was read to a gathering of Blue Cross and Blue Shield representatives by Dr. Joseph D. McCarthy of Omaha, Nebr.

The statement said the development of voluntary prepayment medical and hospital care plans has attained national proportions. More than 30 million persons are covered by Blue Cross-type hospital insurance and over 10 million by Blue Shield-type medical care insurance.

Altogether, 55 million Americans have hospitalization and 37 million have policies covering surgical or medical bills, it was said.

The national coordinating agency would include representatives from each State Medical Association and the AMA. One of its aims would be to devise a method for reciprocity among all plans.

The date for the Chicago meeting would be determined by conferences among groups. An annual conference on voluntary health insurance would be arranged.

Quarantine Plan To Wait Until Beetles Appear

The Agriculture Department has stopped to outguess the Japanese beetle on where this pest may show up next.

This year the department will not set up quarantine regulations in any area until adult beetles actually appear. Heretofore, such regulations have been set up weeks in advance to cover areas where the insect was expected to appear.

The regulations limit—and in some cases bar—shipments of fruits, vegetables and cut flowers from infested areas to insect-free areas.

The department risked a guess today, however. It said the first section of the country likely to see beetle trouble this year is the Norfolk, Va., area. Successive areas likely to be infested, it said, include northern Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and New York.

Truman Signs New Veterans Fund Bill

President Truman yesterday signed legislation providing $595,890,000 for education and unemployment benefits to veterans for the next three months.

He asked for the money last Monday. In his request, Mr. Truman said the money was needed because of an increase in veterans unemployment since January 1 and higher GI education and training costs.

Wheat Pact Ready For Senate; Peru Latest to Sign

The new international wheat agreement probably will be sent to the Senate for ratification sometime next week, a State Department spokesman said yesterday.

He said Peru became the forty-first nation to sign the agreement earlier yesterday. Thirty nations signed immediately after the pact was drafted following a two-month conference. Ten others signed between then and now.

The original pact died last year when the Senate failed to approve it.

The pact would attempt to stabilize world wheat trade and prices during the next four years through a system of export quotas and flexible floor and ceiling prices on wheat.

AP Report Praises Teamwork of Members

New York, April 15 (AP).—Kent Cooper, executive director of the Associated Press, said today the AP served 1708 newspapers and 940 radio stations in this country during 1948 with a degree of teamwork "rarely if ever matched."

Cooper made the statement in his annual report, mailed to members in advance of the cooperative Newsgathering Association's annual meeting here April 25.

The AP served 4274 newspapers, radio stations and other publications throughout the world in 1948. About 1100 members were served by AP Wirephoto, 330 of them on trunk or State networks, and nearly 750 with mats made from Wirephoto negatives.

Mrs. Roosevelt Urges Uniformity Of Divorce Laws

New York, April 15 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today urged national uniform divorce laws and cited the ultra-strict New York law which, she said, have led to as much collusion and deceit as did the prohibition law.

In a radio broadcast Mrs. Roosevelt said divorce should not be made too easy, but must be approached realistically.

"I think sometimes that it might be better if we made it more difficult for people to get married," she said.

Her daughter-in-law, the former Ethel du Pont, is now in Nevada, reportedly establishing residence for a divorce from Franklin D. Roosevelt jr. Of the other Roosevelt children, Elliott has been divorced twice, James once and Anna once.

Christian Churches Schedule Extra Easter Services and Masses

Christians throughout the world will proclaim the joyous message of the risen Christ at Easter services on Sunday.

At some churches there will be services while it is still dark. Later, worshipers will sing alleluias at outdoor rites as the sun rises, and during the day there will be extra services and masses to accommodate the large Easter congregations.

In Catholic and some Episcopal Churches today there will be blessings of the paschal candle, holy water fire, and baptismal water. At noon, the penitential period of Lent officially ends.

On Easter Sunday, Episcopal children will return the mite boxes they received on the first Sunday in Lent. The offerings later will be presented at a children's service at the Washington Cathedral on May 21.

Ideal Easter Weather Seen

of this year's buying as compared with some other years, said the salesgirls, was "a sensible, practical approach" on the part of the customer.

"They're still spending money," one girl at a department-store cosmetics counter said, "but they're looking for more value out of it. They're not going in for fancy stuff as much."

A similar report was given by a florist. He said business "appeared to be pretty good" and he was hoping for a big pickup today."

On the hat front, one milliner reported a healthy sale, particularly in the fancier hats. Women, she said, were buying hats with lots of maline—a "real fine illusion material," as she said—with flowers, birds' feathers and wings.

Even where items for men were being bought yesterday it seemed to be largely the women who were doing the buying. Tie counters were doing a brisk business with women customers. The louder ties, as expected, appeared to be going fastest.

In general, transportation centers reported no extreme rush yesterday, with travel "not up to anticipation" for the normal peak day of an Easter weekend. But still there were many people on the move and both outgoing and incoming traffic could jump greatly today.

GOOD FRIDAY—The Catholic Evidence Guild conducts outdoor "Stations of the Cross" in Franklin Park, 14th and I sts. nw., yesterday in observance of Good Friday. Meanwhile, thousands of persons were attending three-hour services at churches in the city in memory of Christ's three hours of agony on the Cross

Only 10 Pilgrims Make Good Friday Visit to Holy City

Jerusalem, April 15 (U.P.).—Only 10 pilgrims made their way through the Holy City today to visit Christendom's most famous shrine, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre.

The little group, smallest ever to make the Good Friday pilgrimage, was led by Mark Ethridge, American member of the United Nations Conciliation Commission, who flew here today from Amman, Trans-Jordan.

With him were his wife, his adviser, Fraser Wilkins, and Col. John Hoffman, member of the United Nations staff. Waiting for the party in the old city was Brig. Gen. William Riley, USMC, chief of staff of the United Nations Truce Commission.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

IT WAS INEVITABLE that Joe Engel, who once traded a shortstop for a turkey and also staged an elephant hunt in his Chattanooga Ball Park, would wind up wih Bobo Newson on his payroll. They were fated to team up before either called it quits, and it happened the other day when Newson signed a Chattanooga contract.

Engel, the Barnum of the bushes and the poor man's Bill Veeck long in advance of Veeck's rise to fame as a promotional genius, hired a kindred spirit in Newsom. Pitching always was show business with Newsom, even as Engel regarded baseball as a show. The wonder is that it took most of 20 years to gravitate into each other's arms.

POVICH

When he signed Newsom, Engel wasn't too concerned with how many games Bobo might win for Chattanooga nor did he join in the somewhat general minimizing of Newsome as a 1949 winner. "He fills ball parks," was Engel's practical philosophy, "and if he helps fill our park in Chattanooga I've made a good deal."

Unlike other club operators who are sensitive about offending their pitchers with seniority, Engel promptly announced, "We'll start Newsom in our opening game."

ON ANOTHER COUNT, Engel voiced his admiration for Newsom while they were dickering over terms in Florida a couple of weeks ago. "It's wonderful to think he never had a sore arm in his life," said Engel. "I don't know what they'll do with the rest of his body, but they ought to hang that arm of his in Cooperstown's Hall of Fame."

It is suspected by some of Newsom's intimates that the no-sore-arm boast of Bobo isn't quite believable, and that he merely refused to admit that there was sometimes an ache. But the fact remains that Newsom never ducked a pitching assignment, and frequently worked out of turn in the hopes of sneaking in another victory.

It's never dull when Newsom is pitching. He's either winning in grand style or getting his brains knocked out. He was throwing bloopers before Rip Sewell made the pitch famous, and when Joe DiMaggio came into the league in 1936, he openly boasted he knew how to pitch to DiMaggio. "I know his weakness," said Newsom. The first three times up, DiMaggio rapped him for two-baggers. "His weakness," said Bobo after the game, "is two-base hits."

WHEN HE WAS traded to Boston by the Nats in 1937 in the deal that brought Wes Ferrell to Washington, they opposed each other at Griffith Stadium in their first starts for their new clubs. Newsom started a Red Sox rally with a double against the center field wall, and from second base he cupped his hands and yelled at Ferrell.

The temperamental Ferrell, well known for his tantrums, dropped his glove and started for Newsom. The fans expected fisticuffs, only to be astonished when Ferrell calmly reached out to shake Newsom's hand in congratulations. Not until after the game was it learned that Bobo had made a pregame agreement with Ferrell that the first one of them to get a hit off the other was to be publicly congratulated.

Bobo usually had some kind of a gimmick going for him. Pitching against Schoolboy Rowe in a Florida exhibition game, he made three straight hits. The pair had agreed they wouldn't throw curve balls at each other. In his last time at bat, Rowe got even, with a home run over the left-field wall, on a curve ball Newsom threw him as a double-cross, and which he anticipated.

WHEN HE WAS going great guns for the Tigers and winning 20 games and pitching them to pennants, Newsom was choosing his own catchers. It was an irritation to Birdie Tebbetts that Newsom always preferred to pitch with Billy Sullivan, not Tebbetts as his receiver. Everybody in the league, including the Tigers, rated Tebbetts far ahead of Sullivan.

Newsom, however, was willing to take his chances with Sullivan's catching on the gamble that Sullivan would drive in more runs than Tebbetts. He did swing a bigger bat. But the day came when Sullivan was hurt and Newsom was due to pitch, and he had no choice but to work with Tebbetts.

Tebbets demonstrated in the first inning that he was going to tolerate no nonsense from Newsom, whom he didn't like, anyway. When Newsom raged at the umpire for calling one of his pitches a ball, and started toward the plate to argue, Tebbetts stopped him short. In his shrill voice, audible throughout the park, Tebbetts yelled to his own pitcher, "Get back there, you bum, you know that was a lousy pitch!"

Nats Release Jake Early, Buy Weigel; Play Orioles

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Nats handed Jake Early, veteran catcher, his unconditinal release yesterday and added Ralph Weigel, of the Chicago White Sox, to their catching staff.

The 33-year-old Early, who came up from Charlotte in 1939, has been bothered by a bad arm all spring. Except for a hitch with the St. Louis Browns, the Kings Mountain, N. C., receiver has spent the remainder of 10 years in the majors with the Nats.

Weigel, 28, was considered the most promising prospect on last year's eighth-place White Sox team. He played in 66 games and batted .233, 15 higher than Early. Weigel is a right-handed batter and will split the bulk of the Nat catching assignments with Al Evans.

Weigel, the Sox' No. 2 catcher last year, probably would have advanced to the top catching job had not the Sox obtained Joe Tipton from Cleveland in a trade.

Nat Rookies Face Orioles

Weigel went to the White Sox at the opening of the 1948 season after a trade with the Baltimore farm club of the Cleveland Indians for Outfielder Thurman Tucker. He had prior minor league service W. Va., and Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Hhe served in the Coast Guard for three years, 1943, 1944 and 1945.

The sale of Weigel to Washington left Tipton as the Sox's top catcher with Don Wheeler, another rookie, as the No. 2 man. He was purchased outright from Chicago with the sale price unannounced.

Meanwhile, Manager Joe Kuhel announced that rookie pitchers will be employed against the Baltimore Orioles this afternoon at Griffith Stadium and they'll be knocking at the door for regular jobs.

Dick Weik and Dick Welteroth will share the pitching for Washington in an effort to improve their status on the Nats staff, with Manager Kuhel short-handed for starting pitchers.

Tentatively, Milo Candini has been assigned the fourth starting job during the convalescence of Walter Masterson, who will not be available for another month following his apendectomy.

Candini, who won only two games for the Nats last summer while losing three, did not figure heavily in Kuhel's plans in Florida, but he is the most seasoned of the second-flighters.

Welteroth was the most impressive of the younger pitchers and a smart performance today would

BOBO'S TOO BIG—Louis (Bobo) Newsom, colorful veteran of the major leagues, including the Washington Nats, finds Chattanooga's biggest suit too small for him after signing with the Lookouts for the 1949 season. President Joe Engel, looking on, hastily ordered a size 52. It didn't arrive in time for yesterday's opener, so the Lookouts won without Bobo, 11-9

Ray Murray, Vernon Hit Homers in Big Rally

Richmond, Va., April 15 (AP).—The New York Giants and Cleveland Indians engaged in another scorekeeper's headache here today and the Indians came out on top, 16 to 11.

The two clubs now have scored 72 runs in three days.

Trailing 7-1 after five innings, Cleveland opened up for a pair of runs in the sixth and added seven in the seventh, five more in the eighth and one in the ninth.

The seven-run rally included home runs by Mickey Vernon and Catcher Ray Murray.

Joe Gordon lifted one over the fence off Larry Jansen in the second inning while Bobby Hofman and Willard Marshall homered for New York.

Jansen, the Giants' opening day pitcher, worked the first six innings and left the game with a 7-3 lead. Sam Webb and Andy Tomasic took the beating in the late innings.

Dodgers Coast to 6-1 Triumph Over Yanks

New York, April 15 (U.P.).—With 27,731 fans cheering them on, the Brooklyn Dodgers had an easy time defeating the New York Yankees 6 to 1 in the first of their three-game spring series.

Singles by Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo, a boot by Johnny Lindell and Billy Cox's infield tap produced the Dodgers' first two runs off Vic Raschi. They added three more at the expense of Tommy Byrne on two passes, Rex Barney's single and Cal Abrams' double. Duke Snider pounded Wally Hood for a homer to account for Brooklyn's last run.

The lone Yankee run was the result of singles by Bobby Brown, Charley Keller and Billy Johnson off Rex Barney. Harry Taylor and Irv Palica finished up for the Dodgers without allowing a run. Taylor had to quit because of a sore arm after pitching to five men.

Counting today's crowd, the Dodgers have played to more than 200,000 in their spring exhibition games.

Stranahan's 64 Leads at Virginia Beach

Virginia Beach, Va., April 15 (AP).—Amateur Frank Stranahan taught 19 of golf's big-time players another lesson on the links today.

The wealthy Toledo, Ohio, strong man paid little or no attention to a strong wind and toured the par 69, 6,065-yard Cavalier Yacht and Country Club layout in five-under-par 64 to take the lead at the end of 18 holes in the 54-hole medal play competition of the $10,000 Cavalier Specialists tournament.

Stranahan s card:

|---|---|---|---|---|

| Stranahan out | 433 | 434 | 444 | —33 |
| Par in | 434 | 444 | 445 | —34—69 |
| Stranahan in | 534 | 344 | 343 | —31—64 |

Deadlocked for second place and three strokes behind Mr. Muscles were Bobby Locke, the Johannesburg, South Africa, ace, whose putter was behaving more effectively today, and Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis, Tenn., dentist. Each carded a 2-under-par 67.

E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Richmond, Va., who set a new competitive course record of 62 yesterday in a proamateur event, here had to be content with a 1-under-68, the same score made by Toney Penna of Cincinnati.

Even par 69's were shot by Dick Metz, the host pro, and Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C.

Stranahan started to work beating par on the par 4, 331-yard second hole, where he dumped in a 25-foot putt that gave him a birdie three.

Stranahan played with Bob Hamilton of Landover, Md., who shot a 71.

Middlecoff and Heafner, paired together each slammed eagle 3s on the sixth. Poor putting made Stewart (Skip) Alexander of Lexington, N. C., the day's biggest disappointment. Alexander, who used 8 strokes on the par 4 seventeenth, came in last with an 80.

Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., last year's Specialists' champion, was a stroke over par with a 70.

Stranahan will join the gallery tomorrow when the pros will square off in the match for which the Specialists tourney is named. Sixteen of the pros will be divided into four-man teams. Each team will have a driver, long iron, approach and putting specialist. Each player will make only the shots for which he has been selected.

Sunday the pros will resume their battle against Stranahan in the medal competition's final 36 holes.

—3 Of Tony's Tunes Are Out—

Bee-Bop Beats Basketball—Lavelli Picks Music Career

New Haven, Conn., April 15 (AP).—Tony Lavelli, Yale's All-American basketball star, decided today to pass up numerous professional cage game offers in favor of a music career.

"It was the toughest decision I've ever had to make," explained the popular Lavelli, the smooth and deadly scorer who led the Nation's major colleges the past season.

Recently, Tony was offered $11,000 by the Syracuse Club. He also was the first choice of many Basketball Association of America Club with Boston given the league's rights to deal with him.

He brought his collegiate career to a close early this month as a member of the East's team in the East-West battle at New York.

While at Yale, he scored 1964 points in 97 games—a major college mark.

The handsome Lavelli, an accomplished musician, made his decision shortly after the Broadcast Music Corp. of New York bought three of his songs—"Cocktail Time at Dusk," and "Scottish Lad and His Lassie," ballads, and "You're the Boppiest Bee-Bop," a novelty tune.

"Selling those songs did it! exclaimed Tony, an accomplished musician who plays the piano and accordion.

"Music it will be, I decided. And I immediately felt good. It was like turning on a light. Suddenly, I could clearly see what I wanted most to do. I felt right about it."

Rally Short, GW Bows, 20-1

George Washington was slightly late with too little yesterday. Trailing Lafayette, 20-0, in the last of the ninth, the Colonials pushed an unearned run across the plate, and lost their second game in six starts, 20-1.

The Leopards shellacked four G. W. hurlers with 18 hits for 39 bases. Pete Cordelli, starting G. W. pitcher, lasted enough of the first inning to give up four hits, two walks and five runs, meanwhile retiring only two men.

Bill Killinger was Lafayette's hitting star with three singles and a double which drove in four runs. Pinch Hitter John Zlippo socked a homer with one on, John Tierney clouted one with the bases loaded

Terps Bow, 2-1, To Carolina

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 15 (AP).—Behind the four-hit pitching of Dean Cassell, North Carolina today chalked up its tenth win of the season and its third Southern Conference victory by turning back Maryland, 2-1.

Outfielder E. Lamb, Carolina's leading hitter, figured in both Tar Heel tallies. He blasted a 406-foot homer with none on in the third and in the eighth he tapped out a single to score Will Hobbs, who had doubled and gone to third on a wild throw by Hank Miles, Maryland catcher.

Although a trifle wild, Cassell pitched a workmanlike game and was tight in the pinches. Maryland's ru ncame in the seventh and was unearned. With two away, Pitcher Joe Fitzpatrick tripled to right and scored when Stan Goodman let Al Tuminski's hard roller got by.

DiMaggio Optimistic Over Career

Baltimore, April 15 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio said today he didn't know when he might be able to get back in a New York Yankee baseball uniform but that "I'm very optimistic."

He stated emphatically he "never gave a thought" to retiring. The star centerfielder said at a news conference that even if he had to sit out the entire 1949 season he felt he still "had a few more years in baseball."

DiMaggio called the conference in his hotel room where he is staying while receiving treatments as Johns Hopkins Hospital for recurrent pain in his right heel. The heel was operated on for removal of a bone spur last November and he complained of its hurting throughout spring practice which he left to fly here Tuesday from Fort Worth, Tex.

7th Inaugural He'll Miss

DiMaggio said his return to play depends on response of the heel to X-ray treatments. The treatment, lasting one and a quarter minutes daily, will continue until next Tuesday. That's when the Yankees open and it will be the seventh inaugural in 11 years DiMaggio will miss.

DiMaggio said he didn't know whether Dr. George Bennett will prescribe different treatments after Tuesday. The great slugger indicated the physician might.

"I haven't tried the heel much since coming here so I can't tell if it's improved," DiMaggio said. "Subconsciously I guess it does hurt."

He uses crutches most of the time to walk and a special block has been attached to his shoe to keep pressure off the sore heel.

Operation Planned

"I'm very optimistic or else I wouldn't be going through the treatments," he reported. "I definitely hope I will be back in the lineup (this season) if the heel responds to treatment."

Bone spurs "have been cured before and I guess it's just a matter of time," he added. No further operations on the heel are planned.

The 34-year-old player estimated it would take him only about a week to get in shape after he is able to return to the Yankees. In the meantime, Manager Casey Stengel plans to use Johnny Lindell in his garden spot and DiMaggio commented his replacement has been "doing a good job."

As for retiring, DiMaggio declared "I never said anything about it. Whenever I do I'll be the first to say it."

When a reporter asked if he would consider a managerial job if his heel did not heal properly, the Yankee star replied, "I'd just as soon wait until I get to that bridge before I try to cross it."

Co-Favorites In Both Races

Carroll today installed cofavorites for the pennant in both major leagues in his final revised preseason ratings naming the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians at 8 to 5 in the American, and the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers at 8 to 5 in the National.

Earlier, Carroll had established last year's flag winners, the Indians and the Braves, as favorites, but outstanding play by the Red Sox and Dodgers in spring training prompted him to revise his figures.

Upset in Etiquette

Tokyo, April 15 (U.P.).—The honorable manager of the Tokyo Giants slugged the honorable catcher of the visiting Osaka team in the snoot today and horrified 50,000 Japanese baseball fans who are accustomed to watching nothing but ceremonial bowing between rival players.

The Giant manager thought the base-running Osaka catcher jostled the Tokyo second baseman to prevent a double play so he ran out to second baseman to prevent a double play so he ran out to second base and punched him. players from both teams rushed from their positions and from the dugout and began an unceremonious melee.

The umpir efinally restored order and suspended the Tokyo manager indifinitely for his unusual behavior.

Moscow, April 15 (AP).—Who invented ice hockey? Why, the Russians, of course.

That's what the magazine "Soviet Sport" said today in denying the game originated with the Scandinavians, British, Canadians or Dutch.

Trifle One-Sided

Paducah, Ky., April 15 (AP).—The Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association racked up a 35-1 baseball victory—yes, that's right, baseball—over the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Jets of the Central League in an exhibition yesterday.

Capot Favored in 'Graw's $30,000 Chesapeake Stakes Today

Bill Bennings . . .

At Havre de Grace

The name "D. Deason" as the rider of Old Union, $69.80 winner of Thursday's eighth race, did not mean much to Havre de Grace patrons but doubtless they'll give Deason more attention hereafter. The lad is 17 years old and a native of Detroit. The horse, Old Union, is owned and trained by his uncle, Clarence Hartwick. Deason has been galloping horses for nearly two years and the ride on Old Union, to register his first victory at a recognized track, was the ninth of his career. He rode twice at Delaware Park last summer, twice at Hot Springs early this year, three times at Bowie and earlier on Thursday's program had finished third in the first race with Sandlapper.—BILL.

Slam Bang Runs Against Derby Choice

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., April 15.—Greentree Stable's Capot, second choice in the Kentucky Derby, heads a small but select field in the twenty-eighth running of the $30,000 added Chesapeake Stakes here tomorrow. The event is run over the mile and a sixteenth distance and is one of each spring's important fixtures for members of the 3-year-old division.

That Capot will come up favorite for this renewal of the Chesapeake seems a foregone conclusion. The son of Menow and Piquet has been out only once this season, finishing second to Buzfuz in New York. But on his 2-year-old form he has many followers. His victories last season included the Champagne, Wakefield and Pimlico Futurity.

Atkinson Rides

Ted Atkinson, one of the Nation's top riders, will be down to handle Capot in this first major engagement of his 3-year-old campaign, and if the colt runs well he will move on to the Wood Memorial next week and then to Churchill Downs for the Derby.

Capot's top rivals in the Chesapeake appear to be Mrs. E. H. Ellison's Sun Bahram, C. Mahlon Kline's Slam Bang and Eugene Jacobs' Colonel Mike. Others in the field include King Ranch's Swap Out, S. W. Labrot's Taran and Walter M. Jeffords' Pibroch.

Sun Bahram collected a considerable following by his showing in the Chesapeake Trial last Monday when he closed a lot of ground in the stretch run to finish second to The Pincher, beaten only a nose. Last season he gave promise of developing into a high-class performer when he was second in the World's Playground Stakes at Atlantic City and third in the Eastern Shore here and the Futurity at Pimlico.

Two Good Ones Out

Slam Bang and Capot have been squabbling on the race track for some time. Just prior to the Futurity at Pimlico last fall, Capot set a mile and a sixteenth track record in an overnight race but was disqualified and Slam Bang, who was bothered, got the purse. Capot then gained revenge by whipping the Kline colt in the Futurity.

Some of the glamour was taken from the Chesapeake when S. I. Crew's Commodore Lea, third in the Trial, came up lame this morning and Trainer Buck Hazzard ventured the opinion that he would be out of action until fall. It was feared he had popped an ossolet.

Still another absentee is Henry Hecht's The Pincher, winner of the Trial. Trainer Sidney Jacobs felt two hard races so close together might be harmful to his colt.

Impersonating Joe Tough on Lindell

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, April 15 (NYHT).—Sooner or later it was bound to happen to the Yankees' center fielder, no matter who he might be. So it had to happen to Johnny Lindell, a fine ball player, on his very first day home.

Red Smith

When the Yankees—or what's left of them—came back to the stadium today they stuck Bi. John out there in the middle to impersonate Joe DiMaggio, a tougher role than Booth ever attempted. Indeed, from the fourth inning on there were Yankee fans among the gathering of 27,731 who thought this was Booth—John Wilkes.

It was in the fourth that the inevitable happened. Lindell's disguise was pentrated, and the thoughts of Yankee fans turned morosely to Baltimore and Johns Hopkins Hospital.

The first game of the exhibition series with the Dodgers was a scoreless match between Rex Barney and Vic Raschi when Brooklyn's Carl Furillo singled to center with one out and Jackie Robinson on first base. Lindell cut over t ointercept the ball, a routine play on a routine grounder. He got in front of it, dropped to one knee and stretched out his paws.

AND THE BALL ROLLED on. It ducked crookedly past Lindell's right shoulder and bounced away toward the fence. Dodgers romped on; witnesses' thoughts went roaming. Two Brooklyn runs came home that inning, by courtesy of Johns Hopkins.

To the customers' credit, there was no booing. None, at least, that was audible in the pressbox, although the patrons in the bleachers behind Lindell may have offered a few suggestions for the disposition of John's glove.

Far from blaming him because his name's not Joe, the clientele went out of its way to make John welcome. As he trotted to his position in the eighth inning, three small boys came scooting out of the bleachers, auto; raph books and pencils extended.

While the game waited and umpires made gestures of disapproval and a cop bore regally down upon the group, Lindell tucked his glove under his arm and scribbled his name three times.

THE KIDS SCAMPERED off, away from the law. Play was resumed. Duke Snider belted a howling home run. As the ball crashed into the stands, two more kids dashed out. They raced up to Lindell. The umpires glowered. Law moved in, from both foul lines this time. Calmly the moppets waited, and again Johnny signed. Away they sprinted, circling a harness bull.

When two more nippers tried it in the ninth inning, John had to wave them away. It was nice to be welcomed, but it was growing dark and big league protocol was tottering. Nobody minded, though; everybody was too well pleased to see baseball back again.

Even in spite of DiMaggio's absence, there was a warming feeling of homecoming. Maybe it was the lean, slouching figure of Bill Dickey, back where he belongs in the Yankee dugout, that made the bench such a pleasantly familiar place.

Players and newspapermen were moving into and out of both dugouts before the game, shaking hands and talking, and on the Dodger bench Burt Shotton was sitting, a white-haired man in mufti.

"I went over for a picture with Stengel," he was saying, "and I told him. 'Now I know you're older than I am. You couldn't walk over to our side.'"

Shotton had the well-fed look befitting a manager whose team has drawn 170,000 customers even before the season. That, somebody remarked, was as many as he used to see in a whole year as manager of the Phillies.

"JUST ABOUT," he agreed. "We drew 180,000 over there one year. And this club doesn't need it the way they did. Over there it was eating money."

Eddie Miksis, whose face was slightly busted by a ball in training camp, was back to work out on the infield. Said he still had a little trouble breathing through his swollen nose.

"That," said Shotton, "is what your mouth is for.."

On the Yankee bench, Casey Stengel was talking about Yogi Berra's catching.

"He caught Porterfield's no-hit game," he said, "and he caught a 6-to-0 game for Byrne. He couldn't of hurt 'em any."

Everyone seemed reluctant to mention DiMaggio, but Grant Rice told Casey:

"You're the luckiest stiff in the world, do you know it?"

"Yeh?" Stengel said.

"Yes, with DiMaggio, you're supposed to win. Without him, everybody says, 'that's a great job by old Case, finishing fifth with no Joe'."

Casey looked like a man who felt the idea would require some deep consideration.

Tavern Keepers Assure Board They Will Keep Out Gambling

Whether wine and beer licenses should be renewed for taverns in which gambling has been known to exist was considered yesterday by the Montgomery County Liquor Control Board.

Up for hearing were the following: Edward S. Maloy, of Eddie's Tavern, 8504 Georgia ave.; Robert A. Frazier, of Blue and Gray Tavern, 9948 Georgia ave.; Robert D. Flanigan, of Grotto Grill, 8401 Georgia ave.; Richard J. Dietle, of Dietle's Restaurant, 1009 Seminary Road, all of Silver Spring, and Donald E. Nicholson, of Blue Moon Tavern, Germantown.

All the tavernkeepers told the board they would suppress gambling in their places in the future. Numerous character witnesses testified. All cases were taken under advisement.

Second Operation May Be Needed On Douglas' Eye

Southampton, England, April 15 (U.P.).—Authorities at the Southampton Eye Hospital said today that a second operation may have to be performed on the injured left eye of United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas.

An official said there had been no substantial improvement in the condition of the eye since it was first operated on shortly after it was pierced by a fish hook 11 days ago.

"We still hope, however, that with or without another operation condition of the eye will improve," he said.

The condition of the eye is still so precarious that hospital officials refused to allow British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to visit Douglas.

Jake Early Is Released

move him up in the rankings quickly. Weik, who throws the fastest pitch on the club, has yet to conquer his wildness.

The demand for pitching has been accentuated by the Nats' lack of punch in recent demonstrations. Kuhel is content with his top trio of Ray Scarborough, Sid Hudson and Mickey Haefner, but his lack of depth is of great concern.

Clyde Vollmer, recently promoted to the regular center field job as a replacement for Ed Stewart, in Kuhel's attempt to add more power, apparently justified that move with his big home run against Brooklyn Thursday night . . . but offsetting that pleasant item was the futility of Gil Coan who, back in Griffith Stadium surroundings, struck out three times in a row against left-handed pitching . . . Connie Mack has announced definitely that his starting pitcher in Monday's opener will be Right Hander Dick Fowler, who had the best record among A's pitchers in Florida . . . despite a night game 12 hours before, Kuhel had the Nats at the stadium yesterday for a two-hour workout.

NFL Invited To Play Title Game Indoors

Atlantic City, N. J., April 15 (AP).—The National Professional Football League was invited today to play its championship game New Year's night in Convention Hall here.

Frank Fitts of Malvern, Ja., secretary of the annual Clark Shaughnessy football clinic, said he would make the offer to the league. The title game was played last December in heavy snow at Philadelphia.

Convention Hall, scene of a number of prewar college games, can seat 12,000 persons for football.

To set up the hall for football, some 5000 tons of soil must be laid over the concrete floor at a cost that would be prohibitive if a sellout is not guaranteed.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Klutz

Funds Short for Scores Of Federal Activities, Thousands of Employes

A score of Federal agencies and activities are out of operating funds. Additional thousands of Federal employes are faced with payless paydays because of the delay by Congress in approving the first deficiency bill.

The Office of Defense Transportation hasn't been able to pay its employes for a month. The Office of the Housing Expediter had to skip its regular payday last Thursday.

According to a Budget Bureau tabulation, War Assets, Commodity Credit Corporation, Federal Housing Administration and Commerce's Office of Export Controls are among the other agencies whose employes won't be paid unless Congress can break the deadlock soon over the appropriation bill.

In addition, Budget Bureau officials have informed members of Congress that:

The Federal Court system has no money to pay the fees of jurors. The Federal Security Agency is out of funds in its employes' compensation account—money used to pay Federal employes who are injured on the job. And FSA can't make further grants to States for public assistance.

The Veterans Administration is out of money for various veterans' benefits, for its soldiers' and sailors' relief act, and for its national service life insurance.

Maritime Commission has been out of funds since March 1 for its vessel operations. The Reclamation Bureau's Davis Dam project is "broke" and Interior's welfare of Indians fund is depleted.

The Postoffice Department has no money to pay travel allowances of its railway mail service people; to finance its foreign airmail service, to pay for railroad transportation and mail messenger service, and for its widespread vehicle service.

The Budget Bureau memo said that FHA could meet its April 13 payday by deferring payments of all other bills, but FHA couldn't meet its April 27 payroll. WAA is faced with a similar situation. Export Control will be "broke" when it meets its April 18 payroll.

Before it took an Easter holiday, the House passed a resolution that would allow these "distressed" agencies and activities to pay their debts. The Senate will debate the resolution in a day or so.

STATE employes who have been given cash awards recently for economy suggestions are: Leona M. Lennemann, Earl W. Metz, Jo Ann Rogers, Julius C. Jensen, Charles H. Whitaker, Raymond Ziminski, Adele Slama, Robert F. Hale, Helen V. Riegger, Lucille R. Lawley, Wilbert B. Dubin, and Kenneth Channon . . . Commander Glenn F. Lyon will retire on May 1. He's in charge of the United States Naval School of Hospital Administration at Bethesda . . . Civil Service has new tests open for medical technician, $2284 to $2974, and tobacco inspector, $2974 to $3232.

UNION NEWS—New officers of NFFE's local at General Accounting are Glen E. Gordon, president; Earl Wagner and Zillah N. Anderson, vice presidents, and Geraldine Duncan, secretary-treasurer . . . At Federal Works, NFFE officers are Thomas Dimmick, president; Gladys Eldridge and Clarence Steele, vice presidents, and Glauvina Musselman, secretary . . . Samuel B. Danley is the new president of CIO's right-wing Government Workers Union local here. Rose Yohalem is vice president, Virginia Montague and Helen Rice are secretaries and Leon Condol is treasurer.

Ten Testify Dealer Owes $10,245 for Their Cars

Sacchino May Lose License in Alleged Failure to Settle For Used Vehicles

Ten car owners yesterday accused a Washington auto dealer of failing to give them payments, totaling $10,245, for their cars, which he had taken over to sell for them last year.

The complaints were brought against James W. Sacchino, 50, trading as the Plaza Auto Sales Inc., 43 Massachusetts ave. nw., at a hearing before the District License Board in which he was directed to show cause why his auto dealer's license should not be revoked.

An eleventh complainant, who admitted she and her husband eventually got full payment for their car, said she was testifying about Sachino's business practices "in the public interest."

Was to Receive $2150

Charles R. Wilson of New York told the board he was a patient at Walter Reed Hospital last April, when he gave his 1947 Oldsmobile coupe to Sacchino with an agreement that he was to receive $2150 for the car. Wilson said the car had special equipment because of his injured right arm.

Since last April, Sacchino has paid him only $375 for the car, Wilson declared, adding that he had obtained a judgment by default against Sacchino. The auto dealer told him an associate had embezzled some of the company's funds and that he was having financial troubles, Wilson said.

Tech. Sergt. Harry M. Greenfield, stationed at Andrews Air Base, testified he gave Sacchino his 1937 Dodge sedan last November for an agreed price of $250. He said he received none of the money, which he needs because he is headed overseas.

At this point, one of Sacchino's lawyers, Joseph C. Turco, asked Greenfield if he would take back the car at this time. Greenfield agreed and arrangements were made for it to be returned to him immediately.

Paid $90 of $795

Richard H. Smith of 612 Four Mile rd., Alexandria, said he gave his 1940 Packard sedan to Sacchino in October 1948 to sell for $795. He received $90 of this, he said.

Smith added that in January he agreed to work on Sacchino's books, with the hope that he might get some of the money owed him for his car. He did not get the money and in addition Sacchino did not pay him for the work as agreed, Smith asserted.

William H. Hendricks of 914 49th st. ne., told the board he turned over his 1939 Pontiac for an agreed price of $545 in March of 1948.

"Several months later I got a check for $545, signed by Sacchino, which I deposited with a realty company as part of the down payment on a home. They notified me a short time later that the check had been returned uncashed," Hendricks said. He has gotten back no part of the agreed sales price, he declared.

Other Complainants

Other complainants were:

Jack C. Oppenheimer of 3634 Gunston rd., Alexandria, who testified that Sacchino owes him $1635 for a 1946 Plymouth he turned over to the dealer last October.

Comdr. Louis H. Bauer of 32 Greenway rd., Alexandria, who said Sacchino still owes him $275 of the $1075 agreed on for his 1941 Packard convertible last June.

Frank Forneas of 1429 Perry pl. nw., who said Sacchino owes him $1560 for a 1946 Hudson turned over last September.

Elmer C. Martino of 404 Blandford ave., Rockville, who testified he received only $245 of the agreed price of $1245 for his 1942 Packard convertible given to Sacchino last August.

Thomas R. Jarbo, 1831 Kilbourne pl. nw., through his attorney, claimed Sacchino owes him $500 of the $745 agreed on for his 1939 Buick sedan last May.

Corp. John S. English, through counsel, charged Sacchino owes him $2000 for an Oldsmobile left with the dealer in March, 1948.

Mrs. Edith C. McLaughlin, 534 Maple Rdge rd., Bethesda, said she and her husband received a full payment of $660 for their 1939 Dodge, but only "under extreme pressure." She said she was testifying as a "public service."

Sacchino is waiting grand jury action on a charge of embezzling $975 from Arthur A. Mitchell, of Greenwood, Va., in a used car transaction.

The License Board hearing will resume Tuesday at 10 a. m. in the District Building.

Montgomery Road Plan Postponed for Week

Road-building day at the proposed 64-acre Montgomery County Cooperative Agricultural Center, Gaithersburg, Md., scheduled for today, was postponed until next Saturday because of wet grounds.

Approximately 100 dump trucks and their drivers and scores of volunteers were to assemble at the site to build a network of roads with the aid of Montgomery County road-building equipment.

Lincoln Bust Is Presented To Museum

COST $5—Henry C. Roberts, a bookshop proprietor of Brooklyn, N. Y., presented this bust of Abraham Lincoln to the Lincoln Museum here yesterday

A plaster bust of Abraham Lincoln, purchased for $5 in a second-hand store 20 years ago and now valued at $50,000, was presented to the Lincoln Museum yesterday.

Henry C. Roberts, New York author and antique collector, made a gift of the bust, the work of Leonard W. Volk, on the eighty-fourth anniversary of the death of Lincoln.

Edward J. Kelly, special assistant to the superintendent of National Capital Parks, accepted the bust and immediately placed it on view in the museum which occupies the old Ford Theater Building at 511 10th st. nw., where Lincoln was shot.

Roberts said that he did not realize the value of the work when he found it while browsing in a Goodwill Industries store in Brooklyn. Later he insured it for $50,000.

Delving into its history he learned it was the work of the sculptor who made the famous life mask of Lincoln at Chicago, Ill., in 1860 shortly before Lincoln was nominated for the Presidency.

The bust, which is undraped and reveals the rugged features of the beardless Lincoln, was produced from the mask the same year.

The museum will display it as a companion piece to another idealized bust of the Emancipator prepared by the same sculptor. This second bust, a more polished work, shows the shoulders draped in a Roman toga.

Safe Crackers Get $480 in Funeral Home

District yeggs are amateurs compared to their brethren who operate in Arlington, Va.

In Arlington, some members of the safecracking fraternity early yesterday forced the skylight of Fitzgerald's funeral home, 3245 Wilson blvd., dropped 15 feet to the floor of the ladies' powder room, then hauled a 400-pound safe out the back door and into a car.

Proprietor Walter Fitzgerald said the safe contained about $480 and business papers.

In the District, yeggs were not so successful in assaults on safes in three business places. In two of the places they could not open the safes. At one place they opened the safe but found it devoid of cash.

A 300-pound safe at the Continental Hotel Garage, N. Capitol and E sts., was broken open but it contained no cash.

At the Crown Five and Ten, 813 N. Capitol st., thieves were able to knock off the dial of a safe but could not open it. They consoled themselves by rifling the cash register of $50 and stealing a .38-caliber automatic. At the scene, police found a can opener, a screw driver and a pair of pliers.

An unsuccessful attempt was also made to open the safe at the Barton, Duer & Koch Paper Co., 1111 2d st. ne.

Maryland Bans Keeping Oysters After April 20

It's unlawful to have an oyster in your possession after April 20 in Maryland, according to advices of the Tidewater Fisheries Commission there.

The law is designed to conserve the supply of oysters, which take from now until September 1 to propagate anew.

District residents don't have to worry about oysters—even during the non-R months, however. The Food Inspection Service of the Distrct Health Department will let you possess, yea, eat them to your heart's desire, as long as they are properly refrigerated.

Rep. Cannon Urges 'New' White House

Says Present Plans Would Leave Outer Walls as Fragile As an Egg Shell

The White House should be razed and a replica should be built of materials that will last, House Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) said yesterday.

Cannon said that present White House remodeling plans that call for rebuilding the inside structure while leaving the outside walls would leave a building with outer walls as fragile as an egg shell. He said they might crumble within 50 years.

Sees Less Cost in Result

He believes that better results would be obtained at less cost if the present building were torn down and an exact duplicate built out of marble, steel and copper materials that would stand "as long as the pyramids."

He said the historic associations of the White House could still be preserved by reusing such interior fittings as fireplaces, marble mantels, doors, stairways, marble columns, that are now there.

The question of how the White House is to be restored is now an issue in the joint House-Senate conference on the first deficiency appropriations bill, into which the Senate wrote $5,400,000 for remodeling the White House. The Senate-approved fund is based on the idea of retaining the present White House "shell" and rebuilding the interior with a basic steel structure.

Federal officials have conceded that it would be less costly to tear down the present White House—the central section—and replace it with an entirely new structure. The President is understood to favor retaining the present outer walls.

Would Run 10 Million

Cannon said he believed the cost of keeping the present "shell" and rebuilding the interior would run into some 10 million dollars.

Federal officials have pointed out that around one sixth of the cost of the plan which calls for keeping the present exterior would go for underpinning the present outside walls.

Cannon indicated that House members of the conference group are insisting on further study of the merits of various possible plans for White House reconstruction. The group is expected to resume its meetings after the House ends its Easter recess April 25.

Cannon said that once the best plan for restoring the building is adopted, the project is one "in which we ought not to consider the cost."

Bookbinders' Strike Averted In Settlement

An eleventh-hour settlement in wage negotiations between AFL Bookbinders Union No. 4 and the Graphic Arts Association averted a strike of some 200 bookbinders here, it was learned yesterday.

In a meeting at 8 p. m. Wednesday, the union local voted 77 to 53 to accept the terms of the 20 plants making up the Union Employers Division of the Graphc Arts Associaton. A strike had been set for 8 a. m. Thursday.

The union employes, who were being paid at the rate of $2 an hour, asked for a 36 cents an hour increase, accepted 12½ cents plus two additional holidays with pay. They already were getting four holidays with pay. The employers had orginally offered 10 cents more an hour.

Among the large plants involved in the settlement are Judd & Detweiler, National Publishing Co., Ransdell, Inc., George Simonds & Co., William Norwitz Co.

The wage increase is retroactive to March 31. The contract will continue to March 30, 1950. The agreement has still to be ratified by the Unon Employer Division, which is expected to do so at a luncheon meeting Monday at the Continental Hotel.

Curing Old Age Pains Seen Ending Political Ills

Baltimore, April 15 (AP).—Getting the aches and pains out of old age may relieve the world's chronic political ills at the same time, a noted British scientist suggested today.

Anyhow, said Dr. Vladimir Korenchevsky, this business of growing old nowadays is a "disease"—not a normal physiological process—and it's largely unnecesary.

"The world is generally run by older men. Because of their age they have the wisdom that comes with experience." But they also have the mental and physical weaknesses that come with age, the Oxford University scientist explained.

The eventual answer, the Russian-born scientist said, is to "get rid of the infirmities of old age—and have wisdom unfettered for a better world."

15 Seek Seats In Falls Church Council Race

The new City of Falls Church seemed headed for its hottest city council election fight in years as 15 candidates beat yesterday's deadline to file for 9 council seats.

With three councilmen to be elected from each of the three wards, incumbent candidates faced strong opposition. But Albert M. Orme, the present mayor, is unopposed for another term.

The briskest fight should develop in the Third Ward, where incumbents John C. McRae, Boyd Case, and Lee M. Rhoads face Mandley T. Rust, 37, developer, and treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce.

Another Third Ward candidate is W. David Brewer, 38, 1300 Seaton Lane, a statistician for Trans-World Airlines and a resident of Falls Church for three years.

Before the election on June 14, city annexation plans, condition of city streets, and control of city schools all are expected to figure in the campaign.

Falls Church became a second class city last August. Since then, it has eyed a portion of adjoining Fairfax County for possible annexation, and entered a court test to determine whether the county can continue control of city schools.

In the First Ward, Councilman Sherman Wells, veteran of seven years on the council, will face three political newcomers and a former councilman, James E. Durant, an accountant, at 102 Cameron rd.; who was defeated last June in his bid for reelection.

Also from the first ward are D. Kemper Grille, 49, real estate broker of 134 N. Fairfax st.; Robert Cullum, 38, of 203 W. Cameron rd., executive secretary of the Committee for Equality in Naturalization, a private organization, and Thomas H. Graham, 33, 225 S. Lee st., an economist for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Another veteran councilman, J. H. McCarthy, a member for the past 10 years, is facing four aspirants, one a woman candidate, in the Second Ward.

They are Mrs. Diffie S. Myer, a housewife of 116 Great Falls st.; Sam E. McCrary, 40, of 422 Columbus st., an electrical engineer for the Navy Department; Albert K. Hovey-King, 300 Forest dr., a construction equipment supplier, and J. Hendricks Marr, 32, 315 Maple ave., a native of Falls Church and a phone company installation man.

12 Candidates Remain In Alexandria Line-up

Herndon Has 11 Council Candidates

Eleven candidates have filed for June 14 election to fill the six town council seats in Herndon.

Mayor: Homer R. Stutsman, G. Wilson McGlincy.

Town council: Ava M. Daniels, Granville S. White, S. F. Hutchinson, Marshall A. Martin, William Henry Moffett, Charles Kronfeld, Billy M. Keys, Nelson J. Post, Holden S. Harrison, Frank Mahoney and John B. McDaniel.

Orphan Tiger Cub Thrives On Bottle Diet in Apartment

Her mother died in childbirth and her three brothers and sisters were born dead but Bobbette, a little-girl baby Bengal tiger, is alive and doing well on the business end of a bottle in the apartment of Dr. William M. Mann, Zoo director.

Credit for saving Bobbette's life goes to Mrs. Mann, who every night for two weeks got up at three-hour intervals to fix her bottle. Mrs. Mann is an old tiger-raising hand. There's a 350-pound one in the Zoo now that she bottle-fed before putting it where all little tigers go when they get big—behind bars.

For Bobbette it has been a close shave since her birth four weeks ago. She was born 10 days prematurely and was a frail, 4-pound ball of down. Since her fate was in doubt, Mann withheld announcement of her arrival. He did not want to disappoint Washingtonians had Bobbette died.

Bobbette got her name through being the tiger that came to dinner. The day before the Mann's scheduled dinner engagement with the Melvin Hildredth family, 4831 Indian le. nw., the baby was born. So they brought her along as a surprise.

While dinner was served in the dining room, the baby tiger, its eyes not yet open, was lodged in a box in the library—before the fire, to keep her warm. Afterward she had her bottle with 7-year-old Bobby, the Hildredth's son, as an almost unbearably excited spectator. Mann said he would name the tiger after Bobby.

Bobbette's period of frailness seems to be over and nothing should prevent her from growing into as husky and deep-throated a specimen of a tigress as ever sent a roar through Rock Creek Park.

That time, however, is still far off.

Today she sleeps curled up on a pile of towels in the Mann bathtub in their apartment at 2801 Adams Mill rd. nw. She is a ball of the softest fur you ever felt. She is getting so fat that her little belly drags the living room floor like a dachshund. This comes from so much milk-drinking, four ounces at a time, though only every five hours now instead of three. Mrs. Mann is finally getting some sleep. After her milk, Bobbette burps, just like your Junior.

She will stay on an all-milk diet for another three weeks or so before being displayed at the Zoo about the time she gets her first solid food. This will consist of a bone with a little meat on it.

Wahle Named Manager of Arnold Line

Bernard A. Wahle, transportation specialist, has been named new general manager of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., President Joseph Arnold said yesterday.

Wahle will be in complete charge of the operations of the bus company, known as the Arnold Line.

He replaces E. G. Crandon, general manager of the line since June, 1948. Crandon's appointment had followed a dramatic shake-up aimed at putting the line on its feet financially.

Arnold said Wahle also had been made a member of the company's board of directors and was given a five-year contract.

Wahle is former president of the New England Greyhound Bus Corp., was with the Office of Defense Transportation during the war, and is a former official of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Lawyers to Name Maryland Aide to Back Red Law

Baltimore, April 15 (AP).—A special committee of Maryland lawyers headed by D. Lindley Sloane of Baltimore, will help select an assistant attorney general to enforce the State's new anti-subversive law.

The State bar association, at an executive meeting, named the group which is expected to nominate three to five men for the special assistant's job. Attorney General Hall Hammond will make the final selection.

The act, popularly known as the Ober law, makes it a felony to belong to a so-called "subversive" organization, with subversive being defined as advocating violent overthrow of the Government.

Chaplain Raley Sent To Alabama District

Maj. LeRoy W. Raley, assistant chaplain of the Army Medical Center (Walter Reed Hospital) since August, 1947, has been reassigned to the Military District of Alabama and Mississippi, it was announced yesterday.

As his last official duty Chaplain Raley will conduct the 7 a. m. Easter service in the formal gardens at the center on Sunday.

Board Clears 2 Policemen Accused of Beating Boy

Hummer and Reed Restored to Duty; Complainant Admits Permit Falsification

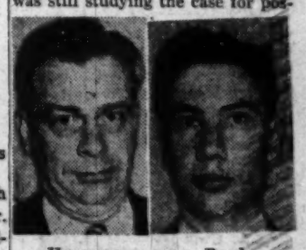
Two policemen accused by a 16-year-old boy of having beaten him with fisfs and a wooden board were acquitted yesterday by a unanimous decision of a Police Trial Board.

The two policemen, Pvts. Eugene L. Hummer, 39, and William H. Reed, 29, of the Ninth Precinct, had been charged with using unwarranted force against a prisoner and with conduct prejudicial to the good order and reputation of the Police Department.

The boy, Harry B. Pettit of 635 B st. ne., who repeated his accusations at yesterday's hearing, was called a "self-confessed thief" and liar by Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford. The youth admitted on the stand that he had lied about his age in obtaining a driving permit and had had trouble over taking hub caps in the Sixth Precinct.

The policemen were restored to duty at 4 p. m. yesterday. They had been suspended by Capt. Irvin H. Umbaugh of the Ninth Precinct on March 31. Both denied the charge and neither took the stand yesterday.

Meanwhile, the civil rights division of the Department of Justice was still studying the case for possible prosecution. Pettit's mother, Mrs. Mertie H. Pettit, made complaints to both the Police Department and the Justice Department, the latter on the advice of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.



Hummer Reed

The youth testified the two policemen took him to a second-floor back room in the station house after arresting him early on March 29 on a car-tampering charge.

They slapped and hit him on the face, he said, bent his arms behind him and held him over a table, and struck him several times with a board across the buttocks.

They were trying to make him tell the names of two companions who escaped when the policemen approached as he and his 19-year-old brother were attempting to take a generator out of an auto in a used car lot, he said.

He finally told them his brother, Clarke Pettit, was one of the companions, he testified.

Under cross-examination, the youth said he had given his age as 18 when he applied for a District driving permit about a year ago. He later changed the figure on the permit to 21, he testified, and was arrested in Hyattsville, Md., for it.

The arresting officer kept the permit, he said, so he applied for another, saying he had lost the original. He was arrested for making a false oath, he admitted, and testified he falsified his age because he wanted to get a job.

Lieut. Albert L. Embry of the Ninth Precinct, testified he had seen Harry about eight hours after the alleged beating.

Harry had discoloration under each eye, red eyelids, a scratch on the right side of his neck, bruises on the arms which "looked like finger marks," and his buttocks were red, Lieutenant Embrey testified. Captain Umbaugh said he noticed a discoloration under Harry's left eye and small marks on his right arm when he saw him on March 31.

The trial board members were Inspector Robert C. Pearce, chairman; Capt. Charles J. Sullivan, police officers, and Frederick J. Icenhower, Washington attorney whose name was among four submitted by the District and Washington Bar Association for service on the board.

State Milk Unit Cuts Prices in Virginia Areas

Richmond, Va., April 15 (AP).—The State Milk Commission today reduced the minimum price for home delivered milk in the Norfolk-Portsmouth milk market from 24 to 23 cents per quart, effective May 1.

Proportionate decreases also were ordered for all other units and grades, a spokesman said.

Hearings were held here today by the commission on price adjustments in the Fredericksburg and Suffolk markets and reductions were ordered in both areas.

In the Suffork market, prices were dropped to correspond with those in the Norfolk-Portsmouth market.

The Fredericksburg market prices, effective April 16, will be dropped from 21 to 20 cents per quart on home delivered milk, with adjustments to all units.

Judge Hooker Named Virginia SCC Chairman

Downs has resigned to become president and general manager of the Continental Life Insurance Co. of Washington. He will assume his new post Tuesday.

Area News in Brief

Dance Fight Starts Troubles Piling Up

Troubles piled up yesterday for Herbert Gregory, 20, as result of some extra footwork at a dance.

Arrested after a fight with Special Officer Bernard Morton, at a dance, 1632 U st. nw., Thursday, Gregory was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail for carrying an open penknife.

He also was placed under $600 bond on two counts of assault and one of disorderly conduct.

In addition, the District Parole Board is expected to look into Gregory's history. Gregory, whose address was listed on court papers as 1129 7th st. nw., was released in January for good behavior after serving 12 days of a 15-day jail term for unauthorized use of an automobile.

The fight, incidentally, occurred at 11:10 p. m. At midnight, just 50 minutes later, supervision of Gregory by the Parole Board would have ended.

At Silver Spring

Tax Increase Indorsed by Trade Board

The Silver Spring Board of Trade's directors yesterday indorsed an increase in the Montgomery County tax rate of up to 10 cents, if necessary, for new school construction.

The present rate is $1.88 per assessed $100 valuation. The trade board officials took the action "reluctantly," they said. It was in response to a request from the county council for advice.

In making the request, Council President Fredric P. Lee expressed the opinion that a tax increase of nearly 3 cents for each one million dollars in school bonds issued would be necessary.

School officials have put county school building needs at 20 million dollars for the next four years. They asked that nine million dollars be made available this year.

Pointing out that the county is eligible for a State grant of $1,260,000, if Montgomery appropriates $3 for every $1 received from the State, the trade board heads said "it would be folly to decline the gift."

The group also recommended that the county council share in the State's newly established 50-million-dollar "credit pool" to the extent of $3,750,000.

Congress Rules On Park Bars, Grant Repeats

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d yesterday reminded Representative Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.) that racial designations on District recreation areas cannot be abolished without congressional mandate.

In a letter to Representative Klein, General Grant, who is chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, wrote:

"It must be obvious that our commission cannot properly comply with the demands of an individual member of Congress in fulfilling the responsibilities with which it is charged by law, especially when such demands concern a matter pending before the Congress, on which opinion seems to be divided, and are apparently inconsistent with the policy previously established and recognized by it."

The two men have been exchanging letters since last October, when Klein charged the NCPPC and the Recreation Department with trying "to saddle the blame on Congress to maintain racial discrimination on many of the playgrounds in the Nation's Capital."

In his latest letter, General Grant declared, "I regret that I have apparently been unable to make clear to you why such action (removing racial designations) seems to require legislative sanction."

He pointed out that an amendment introduced by Representative Adam C. Powell, jr. (D., N. Y.) to remove racial designations "was defeated by a considerable majority. This is the latest expression of the Congress' view. I note you have also taken the initiative by the introduction of H. R. 3614, so that the matter is again pending before Congress."

2-State Forest Fire Sweeps Unchecked

Forest fires, fanned by high winds, blazed in many parts of Virginia and Maryland yesterday, with one of the most serious reported still unchecked after sweeping 550 acres in George Washington National Forest.

The fire sweeping the George Washington National Forest was said to have started at noon and was around about 30 miles northwest of Snowden, Amherst County, Va. About 100 Virginia Military Institute cadets were battling the blaze with a force of about 50 area men.

Fire blocks were being set up around the fire area, on the north side of the James River near the road junction of Routes 501 and 610.

Volunteer firemen in Rockingham and Pulaski Counties, in Virginia, early last night were also reported fighting wide-ranging blazes.

A fire near Pulaski was centered on Peak Knob, a part of Draper Mountain. By 6 p. m. it had spread across 2 square miles of the Knob's southern slope and had destroyed three frame dwellings.

The fire, which cut a swath through a timberland area, burned a long-distance telephone cable joining Pulaski, Wytheville, Galax and Hillsville. Service was not expected to be resumed between these points for 12 hours. The burned cable also put Radio Station WPUV at Pulaski off the air for 10 minutes.

In Rockingham County, up to 100 acres of woods went up in flames.

Firemen were also busy in Buckingham, Augusta, Louisa, Albemarle, Henrico and New Kent Counties. In most cases, forest wardens were directing firefighting crews, with volunteers pitching in to help.

In Maryland, a forest fire in Anne Arundel County was brought under control late yesterday afternoon after it had raged for two hours over a mile-square area south of Riviera Beach. At least five fire companies, aided by State police bulldozers, worked to check the blaze.

In the Washington area, about 75 acres of wooded fields were burned over in the Bradley blvd. and Burning Tree rd. area of Bethesda, Montgomery County, Md.

The fire, which broke out about 2 p. m., burned within 500 acres of Woodhaven subdivision. Approximately 100 men with portable pumps fought the blaze while engines transported water. The Bethesda, Chevy Chase, Cabin John and Glen Echo Fire Companies all responded.

Earlier in the day the Chevy Chase Fire Company put out a 25-acre brush fire at Connecticut ave. and Dunlop st. near Chevy Chase Lake. No homes were threatened.

On the Virginia side of the District, fire burned an acre-wide strip 3 miles long in the Pohick rd. vicinity in Fairfax County before being brought under control yesterday afternoon by fire companies from Annandale, Occoquan, Burke, Fort Belvoir, Fairfax, and a crew from the District Reformatory at Lorton led by Supt. E. J. Welch.

Earlier in the day a small fire southwest of the reformatory was extinguished.

Marcel Psalzgraf, Fairfax County chief forester, said there had also been a house fire at Penn Daw on No. 1 Highway, a small grass fire in the Falls Church area, a woods fire south of Fairfax and another a mile northwest of Lorton.

For Research

X-Ray Volt Range Hiked By Bureau

X-ray research at the National Bureau of Standards will be stepped up to the new ranges of a 50-million-volt betatron, it was disclosed yesterday.

Although the bureau has long played a lead role in developing standards for X-ray dosage measurements and protection, the top limit of its present equipment is 1,400,000 volts.

The bureau's new atom smasher, an electron accelerator to produce X-rays of extremely high energies and frequencies, has been completed by the General Electric Co. and is being prepared for shipment here, the company announced. It is expected to be installed at the bureau before the month's end.

It will be first used, bureau officials said, to investigate two immediate problems, the determination of measurement techniques and the formulation of precautionary principles in the use of these very high energies for medical research.

Scottish Rite Masons Plan Special Service

Scottish Rite Masons in the Valley of Washington will observe Easter Sunday with special services in the temple, 2800 16th st. nw., at 3 p. m. The services will be conducted by Evangelist Chapter, Knights Rose Croix, and will include an address by Ralph H. Gauker, thirty-third degree mason and grand organist for the supreme council.

AAA Protests Higher Price Of Gasoline

By The Associated Press

A motorist organization asked the oil industry yesterday to explain higher gasoline prices.

The American Automobile Association said stocks and supplies of petroleum are high, and so are oil profits, and that other prices in general are declining. Nevertheless, it said, several major oil companies recently increased gasoline prices.

The AAA figured that the average motorist must pay about $40 a year more at today's prices than he did three years ago.

A letter to President William R. Boyd, jr., of the American Petroleum Institute, made public by AAA President R. J. Schmunk, said there were factors "which normally might be expected" to induce lower prices.

Maryland Group Plans Dinner, Fall Dances

By Nicha Soure

ANOTHER State society which is following in the footsteps of Connecticut in reactivating its organization is Maryland, who this week announced dance plans in the fall and a dinner on April 21.

The dinner, for members of the society and Marylanders in the Washington area, will be held at 6:30 p. m. at the Dodge Hotel. The first dance will be held on September 24 at the Shoreham Hotel, with plans being made for a dance every month during the fall and winter season.

The first step was taken in February when a small group of Marylanders met to discuss the re-establishment of the society. Instrumental in the making of future plans for the society are William R. Clay, Winiford Grant, John Burdette, Harry Mendelson and J. H. McGrath. Taking into consideration the fact that the Maryland State Society had been active before the war, the group decided to do something about getting the organization back on its feet.

Mrs. Winiford Grant has been named chairman of the dance committee and Mr. Clay the executive secretary of the society. Questions of elegibility of membership should be addressed to Mr. Clay, 4526 Livingston rd. se.

Not to Be Outdone, Texans Plan April Double Feature

FORMER RESIDENTS of the State of superlative superlatives (Texas, of course) have planned a double feature for April.

The first, set for next Thursday, is a San Jacinto Day buffet dinner with "visiting editors, DAR's and Tideland attorneys on the bill of fare."

Since the dinner will be held at the Woman's National Democratic Club, with space limiting the number who can attend to 400 persons, Texans are urged to make their reservations early and "be 1 of the 400."

The Texas State Society announced that reservations will close at noon on Tuesday, April 19. Mail or phone reservations to Representative Olin Teague, House Office Building (National 3120).

The buffet dinner will be from 6 to 8 p. m. at the club, 1526 New Hampshire ave.

Saturday, April 30, is the date for the real square dance, Texas-style, complete with caller and old-time music. A group of Texas square dancers will show the steps so everyone can join in.

West Virginians Holding Easter Dance Tonight

THE West Virginia State Society is holding its "Easter Dance" tonight in the new ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. to the music of Dave McWilliams Orchestra.

Gov. Tuck Heads Guest List For Virginians' Ball

AT the Virginia Society's Easter Ball on Friday at the Carlton Hotel, Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia will be the ranking guest of honor.

A motion picture in color of all the outstanding historic landmarks in the Old Dominion State will be shown from 9 to 9:30 p. m. followed by dancing until 1 a. m.

Among the distinguished guests from Richmond at the dance will be the Governor and Mrs. Tuck, Attorney General and Mrs. J. Lindsay Almond, jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Call.

Recognizing the semipublic nature of the occasion, as well as the fact that there are hundreds of Virginians living in Washington who have never had the chance to meet their governor or high State officials, the executive council of the society has voted to throw open its door to Virginians and to the public. This will be the first Society of Virginia affair that attendance will not be limited to members and invited guests only.

The dance will be formal with tickets available at the door.

Massachusetts Patriots To Dance at Shoreham

THE Massachusetts Society's Patriots dance will be held at 10 p. m. Friday in the west ballrom of the Shoreham Hotel, with Dave McWilliams' Orchestra furnishing the music.

The dance will honor the 174th anniversary of the occasion when the "embattled farmers" of Massachusetts, warned by the historic rides of Paul Revere and William Dawes, engaged the British regulars at Lexington and Concord, firing "the shot heard 'round the world."

Ask Anne — Where to Get Rug Directions

Could you tell me where to find directions for making a hooked rug? I have all my materials, but no directions. J. W.

The needlework departments of the department stores often sell booklets giving instructions for hooked rugs. Also, the January, 1949, issue of The American Home Magazine has an interesting article on rug making with illustrations in color of hooked rugs. For a slight charge, they will send you both the patterns and directions for making. If you do not have or cannot get a copy of the magazine, I suggest you write to the magazine at 444 Madison Ave., New York, 22, N. Y., and ask for the list of hooked rug patterns they have available.

Recently we moved into a new house in which the floors had been shellacked but not waxed, and at that time the floors were very dull. After waxing them with paste wax, using a heavy electric polisher, they looked much better but were still not very shiny. Could we obtain a higher gloss by applying another coat of shellac or varnish? If not, is there any other way you could suggest? R. C. H.

Since the floors did not respond well to waxing and polishing, that suggests to me that perhaps they were not entirely clean when the wax was applied. Try going over the floor with a good solvent such as varsol or apply a cleaning and polishing wax. If you use the wax, rub the floor well with a cloth moistened with this type of wax, which is liquid. As the cloth becomes soiled, turn to a fresh spot on the cloth until all the soil is removed. If plenty of pressure is used, this will remove all the old wax and with it the imbedded dirt. If this leaves the floor bright and clean looking, apply several coats of paste wax, dried and thoroughly buffed by an electric polisher. If this doesn't leave the floor bright and shiny, the only remaining solution is to remove the old shellac, sand, and apply a new finish.

Will you tell me what "glazed snails" are and where they can be purchased? Or, are they a luxury served prisoners only for breakfast food or perhaps as a reward for mopping up their cells? Anxious Inquirer.

The term "glazed snails" is sometimes applied to a sweet roll which is made of long strips of dough curled into a round shape and glazed with powdered sugar icing. They can be purchased at most bakeries.

I wanted to hang drapes in the living and dining rooms but one of the windows in both rooms runs up against the adjoining wall so that I would have to bunch the drapes if we put them up. I hesitate about curtains because they'd have to hang to the floor and our radiators are below the windows. the windows are square and have the panes divided as in French doors. I am undecided as to what color of drapes or curtains to get. We have a rather plum colored couch (the salesman said it was Chinese red, but it has more purple than red) and we have a medium blue platform rocker. If we have drapes should they be bowered? Everything else is plain. D. M. W.

With this type of window, I suggest you do not have side drapes, but use a glass or ruffled curtain which comes just to the still or the bottom of the apron (the wood trim directly under the winlow sill). With the glass or ruffled curtains use a colorful ruffled valance with an interesting design across the top of the curtain. With your plain upholstery, the valance could have a boldly flowered design picking up the plum and blue colors from your furniture as the predominating colors. To repeat the pattern and colors of the valance, cover pillows with the material for use on the couch.

Just before Christmas someone told me that it was too late to learn to make cards for this year so now, I would like to get a good start for next year. They suggested that I try the silk screen method. Do you know any school in Washington that teaches this subject? I would also like to know if place mats and other things on material can be made this way? R. C.

I have not been able to find a school which teaches this craft, but there is a paint store on 10th st nw., which sells kits which include complete instructions and materials for silk screen decoration. I understand that the instructions which come with the kit are so complete that no further instruction is needel to do the work. The method can be used on both fabric and paper, but a different paint is needed for each. Therefore, it would be wise to indicate what material you plan to use when you buy the kit. One store which sells the kits can be reached by calling NAtional 7888.

Where can I get good second hand book cases and end tables for a small or reasonable price?

My best suggestion is for you to visit used furniture stores frequently. Good second hand furniture at reasonable prices is usually quickly sold, so it may take several trips to the stores to find just who you want. Sometimes cooperative second hand dealers will be willing to keep your needs in mind and call you when they have the merchandise you are seeking.

Miss Ann Dora Leavey was married April 3 at the Romany Room to Robert Cantor. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myer Leavey. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Cantor of New York.

The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Henry Segal. The couple is now living in Washington following a wedding trip to New York.

Giles—Kearfott

Miss Mary Elizabeth Kearfott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh S. Kearfott of Martinsville, Va., was married on April 8 to Luther Melvin Giles, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. G. Giles of Chatham, Va.

The Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden performed the ceremony at the First Baptist Church, where the bride's parents were married.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gray flannel suit with green accessories and carried Cymbidium orchids. Miss Sally Ann Kearfott was maid of honor for her sister, and Miss Betty Ann Thom, the bride's cousin, was flower girl. Larry Belcher was best man and the ushers were Joel Giles, Dallas Morgan Barr, E. Osmun Barr, jr., and George Chester Thom.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Eugene Barr, in Forest Hills. After a Southern wedding trip the newlyweds will live in Chatham.

Nerve, Verve Suffer If You Get Too Thin

By Ida Jean Kain

All right, thin girls, today's column is to help you put some padding on the nerve endings and get more fun out of day-to-day living.

If you haven't enough energy to see you through the day, and feel worn to a frazzle by dinner time, you are eating barely enough food to get by on, and chances are your food habits are wrong.

I'll bet you a spring bonnet you are not eating enough breakfast. The test is: how do you feel at 11 in the morning? You should be going strong, for that is one of the high energy peaks of the day. If you begin to feel all-gone, you need a better morning meal. Eating all the breakfast you desire is not enough. Gradually add a little more food—a second slice of toast, and an egg. Take a small serving of cereal with milk or cream. You won't believe it now, but by eating breakfast you'll begin to look forward to it.

If you have to earn a living, you may object to a heavy lunch on the grounds that it makes you sleepy. Have a moderate meal, and then if possible a pick-up between 3 and 4. But avoid sweets—they spoil your appetite for dinner. Milk, fruit juices and raw eggs are the best between-meal foods. A glass of milk with a beaten raw egg is a tonic, and Jinx Falkenberg, who is a dynamo of energy, claims a glass of orange juice with a raw egg beaten in gives her a real lift in the late afternoon.

Don't "borrow" calories . . . that is, don't skip a meal and draw on stored energy. That's very bad business. And play fair with your appetite. Eat three meals a day, regularly at the same hour, to establish a habit pattern.

To gain, the daily menus must have a minimum of 500 extra calories—500 over and above your daily requirements. Start with the next meal and have an extra slice of good bread and butter. Change your beverage to milk, and have a glass before going to bed.

Overfatigue is another factor in underweight. Try to go to bed an hour earlier at least until you start to build up. Just a few changes in your way of living may boost the calories to the point where you'll gain a few pounds.

If I could just make you realize how much more energy you would have, and how much prettier and happier you would be with your weight up to healthy normal, you wouldn't let anything stand in your way of gaining.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Efficiency is all right in its place. The mother who organizes the household tasks so that she has time for the children deserves credit for her planning. But there are certain household tasks in which efficiency may be a liability.

The bathing, dressing and undressing of young children—those universal daily activities in the home—are among the kinds of routines that should be fun.

If children are pulled and hauled into their clothes, if their attempts to dress themselves are discouraged, or if at mealtimes feeding is a grimly serious business—primarily a matter of getting food down—there is likely to be trouble ahead.

Talking and laughing together, splashing in the bath, encouragement of beginning attempts to pull on socks or pull off pants are among the simple pleasures that dressing and bathing routines can bring. It pays to relax and take a few minutes longer, rather than to have tense and upset children.

Adm. Byrd Reported Planning Pole Trek

By the United Press

Radio Commentator Ned Brooks reported yesterday that Admiral Richard E. Byrd has told him he is leading another expedition to the South Pole.

Navy officials consistently have declined to comment on similar reports that the famous explorer will return to the frozen Antarctic wastes.

Brooks made the statement during this regular program over the National Broadcasting Co. network.

He said the exact status of plans for the expedition are a secret between Byrd and the Navy, but that late next year would be the "earliest possible time for pushing off."

Brooks said Byrd, now 60, hopes to explore a vast stretch of ice cap embracing some three million square miles which is located on the other side of the South Pole from Little America.

Little America was Byrd's permanent base during his last visit to the Antarctic in 1947.

Brooks quoted the explorer as saying he believes he will find valuable minerals in the area and may be able to clear up the cause of "some freakish warm spots" that have been puzzling scientists.

One on the Aisle—

Saint Portrayed With Rare Skill

By Richard L. Coe

PIERRE FRESNAY is one of the great actors of our day. This 52-year-old Frenchman (who looks years younger) has acted everything from musical comedy and classic roles to Noel Coward and the fascinating "Marius-Cesar" cycle of Marcel Pagnol, lately on local screens.

His latest triumph arrives today at the Little, "Monsieur Vincent," a French tribute to St. Vincent of Sales, who practiced what he preached about the always uncomfortable subject of charity.

A multiplicity of characters and events covering a lifetime give the film a sense of vague confusion, but so accomplished is Fresnay's portrait of this good man that it achieves an honesty and sincerity rare in films about the holy.

The screen play by Jean Bernard-Luc and Jean Anouilh carries "Monsieur Vincent" from young manhood to an unflagging spirit of 80. Such a role is invariably preceded by bursts of makeup chatter and photos when attempted by our high-pressure stars. But in Fresnay's portrayal you have an actor who so takes this technical accomplishment for granted that he slides, physically, from vigorous youth to gnarled old age without you, as his audience, being conscious that anything exceptional is passing before your eyes. This subordination of technique, a mastery learned but only automatically remembered, seems to be one of the features in which our pictures differ from those of Europe. We are so bedazzled by our technical mastery that we are unable to put it in its proper, secondary place.

"MONSIEUR VINCENT." Lopert Films release produced by E. D. I. C.-U. G. C. of of Paris. Screen play by Jean Bernard-Luc and Jean Anouilh; directed by Maurice Cloche. At the Little.

Our Actors Lack Opportunity

Fresnay's ability to show the growth of charity in this man as he grows older is, of course, the result of his long, varied career as a performer. I've seen him bright and witty in New York for "Conversation Piece," or consciously in the background for his wife, Yvonne Printemps, in Paris' lovely "Three Waltzes." He began in the National Theater of France, the Comedie Francaise, acting 80 roles by the time he was 30. Can you name one American actor who has had the opportunity to do such a thing? Small wonder that this man's skill makes Vincent a natural, believable human being.

And it is just this quality that makes "Monsieur Vincent" the warm tribute so many of our screen salutes to godly people strive for but do not achieve. Whether he's going to nurse a plague-stricken woman in her wretched home, ducking the rocks of his superstitious contemporaries; ordering a soldier to help him make a coffin; telling the villagers they must adopt an orphan; chatting with the Queen of France about the meaning of life, or sinking into his final rest, Fresnay's Vincent is a recognizable human being, not a sanctimonious goody-goody blown out of man's size into an ignorant, commercial view of the Noble Life.

The result is a picture, for all its episodic vagueness, which presents a humanitarian of strong but sensitive nature, a type of goodness rarely achieved in screen characterizations.

JULES LEVENTHAL'S death this week removes from the American theater scene one of its most colorful personalities . . . It was Joseph Jules Leventhal who revived what Gotham calls "The Subway Circuit," putting new life into old hits after their original producers had thought they'd lost their productivity . . . For many years his partner was O. E. Wee, a firm which used to prompt their actors to say they were working with Leventhal for a Wee salary . . . The stories about Leventhal are myriad, but he paid his publicity staff to keep his name out of the papers: "I can't bank publicity," he used to say . . . He was cautious about expense accounts; when he noted a weekly cigar expenditure for 60 cents in his touring "The Male Animal," he asked how come. "That's when someone offers the professor a cigar and he says thanks." . . . "Change the line," said Leventhal. "Have the professor say he doesn't smoke." . . . One of Leventhal's survivors is his son Harold, who lives here in Washington as a counsel for the government of Israel . . . To his family and associates, the theater world is offering its sincere condolences, for many of its members have often talked of his private charities, loans to players "at liberty." . . . Funeral services will be tomorrow afternoon in New York.

TODAY: Glen Echo Park opens its thirty-ninth season at 1 o'clock this afternoon . . . Walt Disney's "Fantasia" comes back to the Hippodrome . . . Larry Sunbrock's Texas Rodeo rolls into town in preparation for tomorrow afternoon's opening at the National Guard Armory.

Neal Indicates 90c Dividend Will Continue

By S. Oliver Goodman

Potomac Electric Power Co. should earn at least $1 a common share this year, including the proposed new amount of stock. This was predicted by President Alfred G. Neal at the annual stockholders meeting yesterday in the company's auditorium.

The utility in 1948 paid 90 cents a share in dividends on common stock. Neal's forecast of "at least $1 a share" earnings apparently was aimed at reassuring stockholders that the 90-cent rate will be maintained this year in spite of a current proposal to issue additional common shares.

A public hearing on Pepco's financing plan has been set by the District Public Utilities Commission for 10 a. m. April 25. As announced yesterday, the plan contemplates the sale at competitive bidding of 10 million dollars in first mortgage bonds and the sale of an additional 592,250 common shares to present stockholders on a one-for-five basis.

Neal also told stockholders that recent reductions in coal prices should result in substantial savings for the company if such cuts continue throughout the year. He reported that current prices of coal are about 50 to 60 cents a ton lower than last year. In 1948, Pepco used 1,239,000 tons of coal.

A colored movie showing progress in construction of a huge new generating station in Alexandria and a demonstration in the Electric Playhouse concluded the stockholders' meeting.

All directors were reelected as follows: Lee D. Butler, Albert L. Cox, Frederick W. Doolittle, R. Roy Dunn, James H. Ferry, Robert V. Fleming, George E. Hamilton, jr., William H. Lipscomb, William McClellan, Alfred G. Neal, Harry L. Rust, jr., and Wilmer J. Waller.

Out of the 2,961,250 shares outstanding, 2,081,251 were represented at the meeting. In person were represented 29,012 shares; the rest by proxy.

At a later meeting of directors, all officers were reelected and the promotion of E. Perry Knapp to assistant treasurer was announced.

Providing that the District PUC and the Securities and Exchange Commission authorize the financing plan, the subscription price for the new Pepco common shares will be determined at a board meeting on May 9, it was indicated. At the same session, bids on the proposed bond issue will be opened.

STORE SALES: Washington department stores sales in the week ended April 9 ran 27 per cent above the same calendar period last year. This year's sales, however, were stimulated by buying for Easter which comes on April 17. In contrast, Easter fell on March 28 last year. For the four weeks ended April 9, local store volume was 8 per cent ahead of the like 1948 period.

ODD LOTS: Fred S. Gichner Iron Works, Inc., Washington, announced price cuts averaging $20 a ton on all fabricated and unfabricated steel products . . . Cobrey & Co., Chicago, for alleged falsification of the company's financial statement . . . Federal Court has approved financial reorganization of Waltham Watch Co. which would bring six-million-dollar RFC loan and other benefits . . . Trustees of Tucker Corp. reported to court that company can not make cars now because of a lack of money and mechanical facilities.

RESUME TODAY: Major security markets and the Washington Stock Exchange will resume operations for the short session today, after suspending yesterday. The Chicago Board of Trade also will be open today, but the New York Cotton Exchange will extend its holiday.

Capital Airlines Shows Record Gross in Year

Capital Airlines yesterday reported record operating revenues of $23,325,122 for 1948, an increase of 14 per cent over the previous year.

Carmichael

President J. H. Carmichael added, in his annual report to stockholders, that the Washington-based airline showed an operating profit of $835,118 for the past year. After deduction of interest charges and other allowances, the company displayed a net income of $123,997 for 1948, against a net loss of $1,581,091 in the previous year.

Reporting on future prospects, Carmichael said: "The past year's methods which brought Capital through a year of reconstruction will be intensified and expanded. The Aircoach operation, which has proven so successful between New York and Chicago was expanded on April 1 into two other major markets . . ."

Bank indebtedness, he said, was reduced a million dollars during the year and provisions were made for payment of all deferred interest and sinking fund requirements. At the end of the year, current assets exceeded current liabilities by $640,378.

Holdup Gang Member Tells Of $30,000 Job

Morgantown, W. Va., April 15 (U.P.)—A slender young farm hand admitted tonight that he was a member of a stickup gang that financed a winter vacation in Florida for the robbers and their wives by looting banks and stores.

Pennsylvania and West Virginia State police announced that Roy L. Mann, 26, of Sabraton, W. Va., confessed a series of five holdups, including a $30,000 Baltimore bank robbery, to obtain money for the holiday.

According to police, Mann named two accomplices.

Mann told police the gang robbed three business establishments in Westmoreland County, Pa., in January and started South.

Get $3000 in Baltimore

Early in February, he said, they went to Baltimore, Md. They left their wives in a tourist camp while they robbed the Occidental Savings & Loan Association of $3000. After picking up their wives, the gunmen went to Florida, police quoted Mann.

When funds ran low, they said the gunmen and their wives returned to Baltimore on February 15. Again the women waited in a tourist camp, according to Mann, while the gang robbed a smal bank of $30,000.

He said he didn't remember the name of the bank, but FBI records showed a branch of the Union Trust Co., of Maryland was robbed of $30,000 on that date. Then the three couples returned to Florida to complete their vacations, he said.

Capt. Andrew Hudock of the Pennsylvania police and Lieut. R. W. Boyles of the West Virginia police announced the confession after questioning Mann for almost 15 hours.

Questioning Continued

First efforts to link the tall, slender youth with the $5000 holdup of the Bank of Follansbee failed when a Follansbee patrolman, Ross Dye, who was in the bank when three gunmen terrorized employes and customers with a submachine gun, said he was unable to identify Mann. But additional witnesses were summoned and the questioning continued.

Sergt. Don Adams of the West Virginia State Police said the veteran of 28 months' Army service during World War II was not armed when arrested, but had a quantity of .32-caliber ammunition in his possession.

Most of Mann's Army service was as a military policeman in Louisiana, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Baltimore. He is the father of a 3-year-old son, and told Adams he had been working on the farm of brother-in-law, Paul Klose, about seven miles from Morgantown.

Earlier today, the hunt for the kidnapers of two Weirton policemen in the Follansbee case had centered in southeastern Ohio after the car the gunmen had used was found about 20 miles west of Steubenville, in a farm lane near Amsterdam.

Injuries Uncertain

Head of Chamber Says U. S. Has Nothing to Fear

Roanoke, Va., April 15 (AP).—The president of the United States Chamber of Commerce told Virginia businessmen tonight that in spite of the recession from the postwar boom the Nation should "rejoice in our strength . . . not cringe in fear."

And, added Earl O. Shreve of Washington:

"If we come out of the current phase of readjustment with a surge of business confidence, then this country should enjoy a period of prosperity and economic growth on a much more solid basis than the boom which topped off last autumn."

Shreve, principal speaker at the silver jubilee meeting of the Virginia Chamber of Commerce, found in the signing of the North Atlantic Treaty reason for a feeling of added security—not only physical but economic as well.

Soap Prices Reduced by Three Firms

Chicago, April 15 (U.P.)—Big soap companies cut prices today.

Procter & Gamble Co. at Cincinnati cut the wholesale price of its major household soap products by 4 to 8 per cent. It was P&G's fifth cut in a little more than a year.

Lever Brothers Co. of Cambridge, Mass., and the Kendall Manufacturing Co. of Lawrence also cut soap prices. The Lever slash, also its fifth, amounted to about 6 per cent on major products at wholesale.

Kendall said its reductions would amount to about 2 cents a box on the retail price of its granulated soap products.

In New York the Department of Agriculture said wholesale dressed lamb prices had skidded as much as $5 to $8 per 100 pounds this week. The decline was attributed to lack of demand in the face of high retail prices.

International Harvester Co. at Chicago announced reductions of $25 to $28 on two models of home freezers. Last month the company reduced prices on its household refrigerators.

Zinc Buyers Report Another Price Drop

Miami, Okla., April 15 (AP).—The third drop within a month in the tonnage price of zinc was reported today by tri-State buyers.

Today's announcement comes after a 1-cent drop on the East St. Louis market, where the price is quoted at 14 cents a pound. Lead remains unchanged here at $191.11 per ton.

The Eagle-Picher Mining & Smelting Co., this area's largest purchaser, did not say immediately what price would be paid for zinc at its big central mill near Commerce, Okla. The company has been paying slightly above field prices for its concentrates.

Moscow Plans Non-Swaying Tall Buildings

Moscow, April 15 (NYHT).—High buildings planned for Moscow will stand strong and straight, resisting the elements, according to the latest account here of the superiority of future Soviet structures over those of the capitalistic West.

According to the newspaper Evening Moscow, people in the Empire State Building at New York cannot feel happy when it sways in the wind, "creaking and even cracking," the paper said, and "various noises are clearly heard."

Furthermore, Evening Moscow declared, the Empire State Building is without harmony or architectural unity and is little more than "an accumulation of flat surfaces, a chaotic mass of styles, like monstrous stalagmites, of skyscraper blocks rushing upward."

New Technique Claimed

By contrast, the paper said, the planned Soviet buildings will rise to 32 stories and will never yield to the wind, but will stand "unshaken and firm."

Four Stalin prize-winning engineers, V. N. Nasonov, I. M. Tigranov, P. A. Krasilnikov and G. M. Limanovsky, were credited with having devised an original Soviet system for construction of lofty structures. They were said to have refrained from following American technique.

The paper said the Soviet builders will use welded metal frames and "the high culture in technique of electric welding gives us superiority over the Americans." Soviet welding, it said, will permit a 15 per cent saving of metal while producing hardness and firmness in construction.

Whereas American skyscrapers often have a rock foundation, it was explained, Soviet engineers have developed a system whereby high Soviet structures will rest on reinforced concrete blocks sunk into the earth to a depth of several stories.

The planned buildings, according to Evening Moscow, will have various conveniences and innovations, such as speedy elevators which will stop at any floor, soundproofed rooms and purified air at any desired temperature or humidity, restaurants and refrigerators and lifts, cafes, bathrooms and shower rooms.

Moscow, according to the paper, will become "tall, slender and light, standing majestically triumphant over the world and glittering with the beckoning lights of its red stars."

All this was attributed to "the genius of the greatest of men, Comrade Stalin."

Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Douglas Fairbanks, jr., who recently was decorated by the British government, had a private session with Winston Churchill, during which he asked Churchill his opinion about French politics. "The French," shrugged Churchill, "are recovering under a political theory most extraordinary, the unique theory 'Divided, we stand'" . . . Fairbanks last saw Churchill at his home in England, on the night the election returns from America were being relayed to his drawing room. Fairbanks studied the preliminary reports and discounted them. "The Dewey strength will show later," he insisted. "Remember, every pollster predicted Dewey, and they're never wrong" . . . "No, this means Truman will win," said the former Prime Minister. "And as for pollsters, they assured me I'd win—and look at me today."

A Russian pacifist sect, the "Moldkans," with 3000 members in the Pacific Coast area, fear that they'll be relocated, as were the Nisei, and be moved out of the strategic areas . . . The wealthy Hollywood people who received bequests from the late Atwater Kent will appear in court for the probate of his will April 22. They report that the one phrase they constantly hear, in discussions about their inheritance, is "like a hole in the head" . . . Mrs. Otto Preminger, constituting herself a cohostess at Cobina Wright's party for Laddie Sanford, asked everyone "What can I do for you?"—until the whole Argentine polo team told her.

Just before Admiral Nimitz left for his U. N. post in Kashmir he visited the Naval base at San Diego, where the commandant and the civic leaders gave a party in celebration of his visit. Throughout the festivities Nimitz kept glancing at his watch, and finally apologized for having to leave . . . His daughter and son-in-law live nearby, the Armiral explained, and he had an appointment to be a baby-sitter. "They haven't been able to get a sitter for my grandchild," said Nimitz, "and tonight I'm it—because there's a movie in town they'd like to see."

Almost all the Signal Corps photos used in Robert E. Sherwood's book on Roosevelt and Hopkins were taken by Robert Hopkins, who was an Army photographer assigned to the conference which his father attended . . . Mac Murray, the silent-screen star, returned to Hollywood to make a series of television shorts . . . Mrs. Charles Boyer, who married the screen star 14 years ago, was reminiscing of their wedding in Yuma, and described the ceremony. Boyer's knowledge of America's language and customs was slight. The minister asked him: "Do you take this woman for your lawful wedded wife?" and Boyer gallantly replied: "I certainly would love to." The minister frowned: "That's not enough," and had the star repeat the words, "I do."

Okay Sought On Foreign Medal Grants

The Army asked Congress yesterday to let Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan keep the medal that called forth President Truman's famous "S. O. B." remark.

It also asked permission for 86 other present and past military officers, including Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, to accept 95 military decorations from foreign countries, plus one watch.

An Argentine award to Vaughan, who is the President's military aide, is the only one that has drawn criticism. Columnist Drew Pearson repeatedly has challenged Vaughan's acceptance of the medal.

At a dinner honoring Vaughan on February 21, Mr. Truman gave his answer. He said that "no S. O. B." was going to tell him whom to hire and fire.

The President explained at the time that all medals granted to United States officials by foreign governments are kept by the State Department until Congress gives the recipients permission to keep them.

Other recipients of Argentine decorations who want to keep them include Bradley and Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army vice chief of staff; Gen. Jacob L. Devers, head of Army Field Forces, and Gen. Courtney H. Hodges (ret.).

Countries making the awards covered in the legislation are Argentina, Belgium, China, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Finland, Greece, Guatemala, Hungary, Iran, Italy, Latvia, Mexico, Norway, Peru, the Philippine Republic, Romania, San Marino and Venezuela.

Venezuela gave a watch to First Lieut. Frank J. Traversi. He can't keep it unless Congress says it's all right.

Japanese Holdouts Dig In on Island

Manila (U.P.).—Some 200 former Japanese soldiers who escaped capture have established a self-sufficient community in a thick Mindanao forest, according to word received from the southern island.

First word of the community near Mount Apo in Bukidnon province came from a captured Japanese straggler.

A police patrol later discovered a 10-acre plot under cultivation in the middle of the jungle. The gardens were well arranged and planted with cabbages, radishes, lettuce and carrots.

The Japanese were said to have intermarried with the natives. A few Japanese women who escaped from Davao during the war also were reported in the community.

The police patrol heeded a warning that it was of inadequate size to pursue and capture the Japanese.

Western Canada to Try Cotton Growing

Medicine Hat, Alta. (U.P.).—Cotton can be grown successfully in Canada for commercial use, Alderman Simon F. Scott contends.

Scott said cotton can be grown in this area. He pointed out that within a radius of 50 miles of Medicine Hat there are 15 to 25 more days of growing weather than in any other part of Canada.

One hundred pounds of Texas cotton-seed will be made available to farmers as soon as warm weather prevails, Scott said.

Scott promoted the idea of growing cotton in this area after a trip to the United States and Mexico. He claims conditions here are similar to those he saw in Mexico.

$58,000 to Spend

Aussie Plans 'One Helluva' Spree in U. S.

Baltimore, April 15 (AP).—An Australian innkeeper who made $58,000 off American soldiers during World War II wants to spend it on a "rip-roaring and one helluva vacation" in this country.

In a letter to the nonexistent "State Chamber of Commerce, State of Maryland," which reached John P. Trimmer of the State department of information, Eric K. Ralston of Alstonville, New South Wales, said:

"I am a wealthy, middle-aged hotel proprietor, with $58,000 in United States currency and a hankering to visit the United States, (northern States) to enjoy a rip-roaring and one helluva vacation of at least six months."

He said he accumulated the money "when Uncle Sam's fighting forces arrived in 1942-45 and saved Australia and its people from the horrors and terrors of an invasion and occupation . . ."

Ralston said "I owe my my financial security and well being to the big-hearted and generous spending of the Yankee service men, and I am anxious to visit the Yankee States of the Union and to reciprocate the hospitality and generosity accorded me by the 'Yankee guys' during their sojourn in my home state of New South Wales."

He said he needed full and complete information on hotels and first-class accommodations, sporting facilities, night clubs, social clubs and airlines.

Trimmer's office is sending the information, together with an invitation and other data it hopes will convince Ralston that there is no better place than Maryland to spend $58,000 in United States currency.

May Have Key To Language Of Hittites

Instanbul, Turkey, April 15.—An archeologist reported Monday he may be on the way to solving the 8000-year-old secrets of the language of the Hittites.

Helmuth Bossert of the University of Istanbul, disclosed that he had made a major discovery when he stumbled out of a snawstorm in the Taurus mountains and found a complete Hittite fortress.

Inside one of the long corridors he found perfectly preserved stone tablets containing texts in Hittite. Other tablets had been undecipherable because there was no key.

But alongside the Hittite texts Bossert and his 32-year-old woman assistant, Dr. Halet Djambel, found identical texts in Phoenician. Since archeologists already had deciphered Phoenician, it became the key to the Hittite language.

The Hittites played a major part in the history of early civilization. Their influence was felt from Turkey to Egypt and they are mentioned several times in the Bible. But their own account of their history has been a mystery.

Bossert said he already had deciphered about 30 of the Hittite phrases and believes he can finish the other 150 in a "year or two," thus providing a glimpse into unrecorded history a thousand years before Christ.

Bar Attracts Firemen Most So Chief Quits

Ashland, N. J., April 15 (U.P.).—Fire Chief Richard G. Swope has resigned because he was sick and tired of trying to get his volunteer firemen away from the firehouse bar long enough to fight a blaze.

"The fire company's morale has been ruined since the bar was installed 28 months ago," he said. The last straw was Saturday. Four of his men walked away from a fire and two others refused to help fight it, swope said.

No Other Way

There simply is no other way . . . To say I love you, dear . . . And that is why I use these words . . . To make my meaning clear . . . The same as when I talk to God . . . In glory or despair . . . With old, familiar phrases of . . . A universal prayer . . . Perhaps they sound mechanical . . . And commonplace at times . . . And yet they speak as much as prose . . . Or any perfect rhymes . . . They are the words that tell your heart . . . How much I think of you . . . And why my every deed is one . . . To help your dreams come true . . . There is no substitute in life . . . For sentiment sincere . . . Or any other way to say . . . How much I love you, dear.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Max Discovers How the Other Half Lives

Max Medley, head of the accounting division at War Assets, returned to Washington by air the other day, and was waiting on a bench at the airport for his wife to come pick him up.

Parked nearby was a beautiful yellow Cadillac convertible—the kind everybody vows he's going to buy the minute his ship comes in.

Turning to a young chap who shared the bench with him while he waited for his own wife to show up, Max mused that he couldn't see how folks could afford such cars these days. The other fellow looked at the Cadillac thoughtfully, but made no comment.

"What I mean," continued Max, "is that the original cost plus the cost of the upkeep are so high, that with conditions as they are today, I don't see how anybody can afford them."

"Ummm, yes," replied the other fellow. "Excuse me, but this is my wife now, and I'll have to be going."

Whereupon a beautiful yellow Cadillac convertible drove up, and the guy got in.

Max says that from now on he'll think twice before he starts any conversations with strangers.

MISCELLANY

Two alert readers arch eyebrows at this newspaper's recent statement that "Her 8-year-old son, Stephen, hasn't missed a dress rehearsal in the past 10 years" . . . Mona Merritt of Suitland Manor and Mrs. Dot Wolfe Richardson of 5001 N. 15th st., Arlington, Va., get credit for spotting that one . . . Mrs. Wilbur L. Fugate of 309 Wolfe st., Alexandria, Va., has high praise for the two policemen who helped her when her purse was stolen in a downtown department store. The First Precinct identifies the cooperative officers as Pvts. Clarence S. Muse of 606 S. Taylor st., Arlington, Va., and Albert G. Fielder of 212 Douglas st. ne. . . . Pat (she's a she) Smith of the National Cathedral School is baffled by the recent classified ad which began: "Saleslady ready to wear;" . . . Kay Spiess of 2101 N st. nw. wonders why we often pay tribute to policemen, bus drivers, carrier boys, etc., but never have a kind word to say for the postman—without whom we'd be in sad shape . . . Mrs. Hilda L. Talton of 3100 26th st. ne. asks "What flag flies from the center pole at Union Station? It never seems to unfurl, so I can't tell" . . . The depot Station Master says it's the District of Columbia flag—white, with red stars and bars . . . If Georgia's Dick Russell is still worried about a possible shortage of hominy grits because of our European aid program, Carl's Market at 215 10th st. sw. says they'll gladly make the Senator a present of all he can eat . . . If that's the way these things work, I think I'll express a fear that we're going to have a shortage of barbecued ribs—and then wait for somebody to make me a similar offer . . . A few days ago, the Associated Press carried a story from upstate New York about a woman who called for a radio cab. A hacker who had been passing her house when he got the call rang the doorbell almost before the woman hung up her phone—whereupon she refused to ride with him because "You drive too fast" . . . I used the story on my WTOP broadcast. Now it's coming back to me from several sources with the explanation: "This actually happened to a woman in Georgetown."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four 6-week-old kittens." (Franklin 3819.)

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I think your Washington Post telephone operators deserve a word of praise for the efficient, courteous way they handle the floods of calls that come in when important events are taking place.

I have called several times, and have always found them prompt and very helpful.

Mary Gilbert
6119 7th pl. nw.

Dear Mary:

How right you are. My only complaint about them is that they never give up—they find me regardless of how much I try to hide from them.

Bill

STRIKE THREE, YER OUT!

Now that it's all over, this seems funny—but it certainly didn't at the time.

We were talking about how the pressmen walked out in the first (one-day) strike and then how both the pressmen and the stereotypers went out in the second, formal strike. One of the old hands in the city room observed:

"All we need now is one more; three strikes and we'll all be out."

"ONLY" 157 YEARS?

David A. Frantz of 3406 23d st. se. doesn't take too kindly to those who cast aspersions on the workmanship and the quality of the mortar used in the construction of the White House, "which has withstood the ravages of time for only 157 years." Says David:

"I wish that some of the artisans who built the White House were here to show modern builders how to mix the mortar—or even plaster—for some of our alleged modern apartments."

FORECAST

After several beautiful days of sunshine, we can now get set for foul, wet weather. The Nats are ready to start their season.

Listen to Bill Gold's "This Is Washington," the District Line on the Air, Monday through Friday, over WTOP, from 10 a. m. to Arthur Godfrey time at 10:30.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mexican Rightists Increase

By Drew Pearson

The public announcement of support recently tendered to Mexico's President Miguel Aleman by famed Leftist Gen. Lazardo Cardenas, the country's Chief Executive from 1934-40, was a move to close "revolutionary" ranks against an expected rightist onslaught in next July's congressional elections.

ALEMAN

Aleman, first civilian elected to the nation's top office in 30 years, wants to set another precedent by making this balloting the freest and cleanest in Mexican history. But he is also anxious to have his own PRI (Party of the Institutional Revolution), which has held power since 1917, win the elections.

These twin aims would have been almost impossible to achieve without Cardenas' potent backing. The military elements in the official party have been noticeably lukewarm toward the present administration; meanwhile, the ultra-conservative, strongly pro-Catholic National Action Party has enjoyed a phenomenal growth.

The former President's unqualified indorsement of the Aleman regime means that PRI candidates would get about 40 per cent of the votes, National Action around 50 per cent, if an honest election were held today. The remaining 10 per cent belong to the Communist-line Popular Party, formed early last year by astute Labor Leader Vicente Lombardo Toledano.

Aleman's chief concern during the next few months will be to woo the support of this latter group. With that, plus the propaganda advantages which control of government machinery give him, the PRI can probably squeak out a narrow victory over the opposition.

But if Lombardo's far-leftists run candidates of their own, the Mexican President will be forced to face the alternatives of almost certain defeat for his party, or of abandoning his plans to eliminate fraud in the balloting.

Dixiecrats Have Plans

Heartened by Southern victories in Congress, the Dixiecrats are planning a comeback. This time, leaders say, their goal will be to merge with Republicans and build a new party, dedicated to preserving States' rights.

"We expect," explained a spokesman, "to absorb the Republican Party."

The first step will be to set up an "educational" office in Washington to spread Dixiecrat doctrines and establish ties with cooperative Republicans. Dixiecrat leaders have already appealed to Arkansas' former Gov. Ben Laney to head this office.

Feelers have also been sent out for a staff to run the headquarters. Though still in the dickering stage, the Dixiecrats have just about decided to hire Courtney Pace, administrative assistant to Senator Eastland of Mississippi, and two high-powered publicity men—Sam Farrington of Jackson, Miss., and Glen Sanders of Montgomery, Ala., both former newsmen who helped master-mind the Dixiecrat presidential campaign.

Another plan up the Dixiecrats' sleeve is to keep a close check on how Southern Congressmen vote and broadcast the result to the South in a monthly magazine. Dixiecrats believe they can start off with a mailing list of one million.

Oil Lobby Money

To raise money for this program, the Dixiecrats expect to tap the same sources that contributed to their presidential campaign. Chief donor is the oil lobby, which wants States' rights-minded politicians in power, so the rich tidelands oil can be restored to the States.

Most Southern Senators and Congressmen are somewhat wary about being tagged as Dixiecrats—at least until the movement gains enough strength to keep them in Congress. But though Democrats in name, many are supporting the Dixiecrats under cover. A few more rabid solons, such as Mississippi's Senator Eastland and Congressman Rankin, are cooperating openly. The Dixiecrats' presidential candidate, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, is keeping in close touch with the movement and sends a personal representative to all meetings.

The party is held together by an executive committee, made up of three representatives from each of 13 Southern States. A special subcommittee has been named, however, to set up the Washington office and get the movement rolling. Chairman of this is W. W. Wright of Jackson, Miss., wealthy grocery-chain head.

Shrewd politicians do not underestimate the Dixiecrats; in fact, have been waiting for a shift in political parties. Whether this will take the form of a third, ultra-conservative party or whether it means a realignment of the two major parties remains to be seen.
